GAMING ACTION BY GRAND JURY IS HELD LIKELY

District Attorney Plans "Numbers" Prosecutions as Felonies.

CONSPIRACY BILLS MAY BE DEMANDED

Offender Is Fined $300 in Lieu of 90-Day Jail Sentence Here.

MORE LANDLORDS SUING FOR OUSTERS

Crusade Plans Are Pushed With New Energy by Officials.

Determined to break up widespread operation of the game of numbers in the District of Columbia, the United States attorney's office is preparing to prosecute many of the cases now pending under statutes of the criminal code which will require grand jury consideration of violations, it was learned yesterday.

It is understood that United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and his assistants are considering the possibility of bringing charges of conspiracy to violate the gaming laws of the District against alleged members of a numbers ring now under bond, and that the same policy is to be followed in future when persons known to be members of a numbers ring are arrested.

Felony to Be Charged.

Another step being considered by Rover's office, which also will bring the cases before the grand jury, is prosecution under the statute which makes it a felony to set up a gaming table.

These steps are but two of many that are being taken by the attorney's office and police in an effort to rid Washington of what is described by law enforcement officials as a menacing condition. The crusade is not yet a week old, but in the brief period in which it has been in operation, attaches of Rover's office are more than pleased with progress.

Assistant United States Attorney Renah F. Camalier, who is in charge of the part of the crusade which is aimed at the owners of property in which gaming establishments are known to be housed or are suspected of being housed announced yesterday that several other renting agencies and landlords communicated with him during the day, pledged cooperation with the crusade and sought advice as to how to rid their property of persons suspected of permitting gaming.

Records to Be Furnished.

Camalier advised all those seeking advice that while the attorney's office could not help them prosecute ouster proceedings in the Municipal Court, that he would be delighted to furnish records of arrests, convictions and the like of persons who are suspected of conducting gaming establishments. Pledges of cooperation and requests for advice follow action of Rover earlier in the week in sending letters to 289 landlords informing them that they can be charged with aiding and abetting gaming if tenants guilty of violating the law are not ousted.

Since receipt of the letters, numbers of renting agencies and landlords have instituted ouster proceedings against tenants who reside at addresses furnished by the United States attorney.

"Some persons who are going to be ousted may think that they can move and that will end the matter, but it will not," Camalier said yesterday. "The police are cooperating to the fullest, and when a person suspected of conducting a gaming establishment moves the police will keep an eye on him and the first time he is arrested, the landlord will be given a warning to oust him."

Sentences Threatened.

Judge Gus A. Schuldt, who recently announced that he would accept no more forfeitures in gaming cases where the game of numbers is involved, lent additional support yesterday when he let it be known that in future persons facing him on gaming charges growing out of operation of the game will be given stiff sentences.

This was shown when the presiding judge of the Police Court sentenced James Greene to pay a fine of $300 or serve 90 days. This is the stiffest sentence yet meted out in numbers cases, fines in the past having ranged from $25 to $50.

Greene, who pleaded not guilty, and demanded a trial by court, stated that he did not conduct a numbers game at the place which was raided by Eighth Precinct police. He admitted, however, that his brother worked for a man who did run a numbers game.

Police testified that they found Greene in the place that was raided and that a small amount of money

14,000 Water Meters Broken; Consumers Billed by Estimate

Department Hides Fact; Inquiry Reveals That Many District Customers Pay Whether Or Not They Use Amount Registered on Accounts.

By AUSTIN T. ROGERS.

The Water Department today is seen facing the District Commissioners in an attitude of supplication, with one hand outstretched in a plea for an increase of 30 per cent in water rates, while holding its other hand behind its back in an attempt to conceal the fact that 14,000 District water meters are not registering.

Yesterday The Post disclosed secret plans of the Water Department to extract an extra $500,000 or more yearly from the pockets of Washington taxpayers. Today The Post reveals a fact which the Water Department has sought to guard even more secretly: the fact that almost 20 per cent of its meters are not functioning.

As its excuse for raising the rates, the Water Department points to the District water fund, which shows, on paper, a deficit of $43,425 as of June 30, when the last fiscal year ended.

In its annual report for the year ended June 30, the department points with pride to its assertion that "experimental work and construction on an improved flow meter was carried on during the year and plans started for the resumption of intensive water surveys for reduction of the large amount of unaccounted-for water, representing about one-third of the total supply."

Passing by for the moment the fact that instead of the paper deficit of $43,425, there is in actuality a cash surplus of approximately $75,000 in the water fund, it is still apparent that a glance at its own records showing a total of 13,936 defective meters would reveal to the Water Department the fate of most if not all of the allegedly missing water.

It is difficult to understand why the Water Department, knowing that almost a fifth of all its meters are not operating, and that many of these have been out of order for as long as eight years, has not taken the precau-

CHINESE OUTRAGES ALLEGED BY SOVIET

RAIL OFFER IS REJECTED

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—A long list of alleged outrages committed by Chinese and Russian White guards along the Manchurian border during the last six weeks was made public tonight by Soviet authorities who declared that all of the charges were amply corroborated by official documents and the testimony of eye-witnesses.

The government earlier had announced that no major engagements had occurred on the Manchurian frontier but that the Soviet border guards had taken reprisal movements after Chinese soldiery had violated the peace.

The Soviet indictment of Chinese handling of Russian citizens in Manchuria ranged through almost every conceivable form of hardship and torture. There were alleged to have been many executions and wholesale imprisonments, with cases where Russians were driven to suicide or became insane.

It was said that scores of headless bodies had been found in Harbin and along the Chinese Eastern Railway, disputed administration of which is at the bottom of the present suspended relations between the two countries. Many Soviet citizens who vanished without a trace. Thousands of others were in insanitary Chinese prisons on concentration camps without sufficient food, shelter or medical attention. In some cases typhus, dysentery and other diseases had developed among the prisoners.

In one instance, according to the Soviet authorities, Russian citizens who had been bitten by mad dogs were denied medical attention, women prisoners who were recent mothers or who expected to become mothers were denied admission to hospitals.

It was said that prisoners were given only bread and water, while whipping, solitary confinement and other forms of cruelty were practiced.

In connection with an assault on a Chinese police employe, the

MOTHER INDICTED FOR SON'S MURDER

Mrs. Hattie Stone, Havre de Grace Resident, Is Held for Trial.

LAD DIED FROM POISON

Special to The Washington Post.

Belair, Md., Sept. 13.—Indicted today for the murder of her 15-year-old son, George, Mrs. Hattie Stone, of Havre de Grace will be brought to trial September 23, it was announced late this afternoon. The indictment resulted from an investigation by the grand jury for the last several days.

It was indicated this afternoon that attorneys for Mrs. Stone, who is lodged in jail here, will permit her to be brought to trial before Judge Walter W. Preston, in the circuit court of Harford County, and will not seek a change of venue. It was not determined whether the defense would ask a bench or jury trial.

Mrs. Stone was arrested June 13, following the death of her son on June 4. Her arrest followed a report made by Baltimore chemists to W. Worthington Hopkins, State's attorney for the county, that examination of the boy's viscera revealed he had died of strychnine poisoning.

The boy's elder brother Edgar, and his father, Edward, died suddenly within the last two years. The boy's grandmother, Mrs. Emma Stone, died about four years ago. Convulsions and extreme nausea were the symptoms in the final illnesses of the father and two boys, it was said.

George died after an illness of less than a day. On the night of June 3, while apparently in good health, he attended a motion picture theater in Havre de Grace. When he returned home he was taken violently ill and Dr. Charles Foley, son of the coroner Justice Martin P. Foley, was summoned. Not satisfied to handle the case alone, Dr. Foley called in Dr. F. W. Steiner. Their efforts could not save the boy.

Dr. Steiner, who had treated the elder brother, recalled the circumstances of his death and reported the matter to the coroner, who ordered an immediate investigation. A coroner's jury was impaneled, and after a short hearing the viscera was removed from George's body and sent to Baltimore for examination.

SENATORS FIRE ON 'HYPOCRISY' OF TARIFF BILL

Harrison, of Mississippi, and Brookhart, Iowa, Flay Measure.

WATSON DEFENDS ACT IN RADIO TALK

Indianian Declares Long Study Is Needed to Evolve Plan.

BINGHAM, OF UTAH, SUBJECT IN TIRADE

Sugar Fees Are Ridiculed by Speaker; Smoot Gets Attention.

(Associated Press.)

Vituperation was heaped upon the tariff bill in the Senate yesterday by two of its most fiery speakers, Harrison, of Mississippi, and Brookhart, of Iowa.

The Southern Democrat and the Republican Independent from the Midwest agreed that the measure was designed for special privilege. The opposite view was taken last night, however, by Senator Watson, the Republican leader, in a radio address which marked his first public statement since the House bill was revised by the Senate finance committee majority.

Facing the silent Republicans, Harrison termed the measure a masterpiece of discrimination with deception abounding, and shouted: "The forked tongue of hypocrisy hisses through every paragraph."

Fails to Give Market.

The major Brookhart's objection was that "the bill fails to give the farmer the home market pledged to him in the Republican platform and in the recent campaign."

Speaking over a nation-wide hookup of the National Broadcasting Co., Watson called for passage of the bill to carry out the program of President Hoover recommended to Congress in a message to the special session.

The Indiana veteran asserted it was "easy to rail against these duties, to say that they are 'outrageous' and 'infamous' and that this is a tariff of 'monstrosities,' but the members of the finance committee spent months in the formulation of this bill and to that end brought together the most skilled experts of the country, and that is the only intelligent way in which a tariff bill can be formulated."

Discourage Industries.

A few hours before the Republican leaders had heard Senator Harrison contend the bill should be entitled an act to "destroy revenue, stifle commerce, discourage industries, flimflam American labor, and fleece the American farmer."

Shaking his finger at Republican framers of the bill, he attacked with vigor the allocating of subcommittee chairmanships to deal with revision of particular schedules.

"It was the worst conspiracy that was ever concocted in the legislative annals of this Government," the Mississippian raged. "It was a case of trading and trafficking among themselves in the interest of the already bloated favored ones of their particular States."

He painted a hypothetical word picture of how the subcommittee members were selected. He portrayed Chairman Smoot as stepping in and saying, "'Now, boys, I know all there is to know about sugar,'" and complimented him for devising the sliding scale, "which not a single witness before the committee indorsed."

Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, was portrayed as "pleading" for the

HOOVER AND MACDONALD PLAN TO SHUN WARSHIP SCRAPPING AT PARLEY ON NAVIES' PARITY

Only One Entrant Finishes Heat As President's Cup Race Opens

General view of the Potomac during the President's Cup Races which started yesterday afternoon and will continue today. Boats, both large and small, privately and Government owned, lined the courses while an Army dirigible hovered low overhead.

Obsolescence During Five Years Expected to Give Equality Sought.

HOLIDAY IN BUILDING WOULD BE ORDERED

2 Factors, in Operation Until 1936, Trusted to Attain Ojective.

CRAFT AUTHORIZED TO BE CONSTRUCTED

Anticipated Action by Other Powers Will Allay Fears Over Defense.

By CARLISLE BARGEON.

President Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald are ready to go into a general naval conference on the basis of a proposal for general naval reduction. A general reduction by obsolescence, instead of scrapping any ships, is the plan, however, to be discussed.

It is hoped to have a general conference in December, with representatives of Japan, France and Italy, in addition to this country and Great Britain, in attendance.

In so far as the cruiser problem is concerned, no detailed agreement has been reached on the question of parity between this country and Great Britain and under the proposal for a general reduction there probably always would be a small disparity between this country's total cruiser tonnage and that of Great Britain, but there would be an equality of total naval tonnage and a saving of billions of dollars in naval expenditures by the major naval nations.

Holiday in Building Sought.

The plan which this country and Great Britain would propose to the general conference, briefly, is that a general holiday be declared until 1936 in the building of battleships and airplane carriers and perhaps to a lesser extent in submarines and destroyers.

Under the Washington arms agreement replacements of capital ships are to begin after 1931. This date would be advanced until 1936 and the plan in effect would be applied to submarines and destroyers.

Reduction and parity by 1936 is the aim of the United States and Great Britain. This plan has been proposed in lieu of premature scrapping.

Hope to Eliminate Politics.

It is considered easier of accomplishment and in the long run just as effective. Reduction and parity by that time, it is felt by the administration, will have taken the whole naval question out of political controversy.

It will prevent an armaments race and stabilize the whole naval building industry. This country's Navy will profit, it is felt, by the simple fact that its needs will have been definitely agreed upon and officials will not have to make fights before Congress for appropriations.

There will not be the suggestion that one nation is trying to outbuild another.

Ships Authorized to Be Built.

At the same time, by effecting the reduction through obsolescence of ships and agreement not to replace them, the opposition of big navy advocates, it is hoped, will be avoided. It is one thing to agree to scrap ships already constructed or authorized and another simply to agree not to replace them.

In so far as the cruiser question is concerned there is little doubt that the fifteen ships already authorized, two of which are now building, all will be built.

MacDonald has set 340,000 tons as his irreducible cruiser tonnage. The

MOB THREAT TO KILL STRIKE CHIEF BARED

14 PRISONERS IDENTIFIED

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Judge Thomas J. Shaw's investigation here into the activities of the Gastonia anticommunist mob of Monday night, halted after a bare start this morning, was swung into action this afternoon and by the time for adjournment late today five witnesses had testified and all 14 of the defendants had been named as members of the mob by one or more of the State's witnesses.

Two of the three men spirited away by the mob, C. M. Lell and C. D. Saylor, testified. Mrs. Helen Lodge and Mrs. Jessie Franks, occupants of the house from which the men were taken, told their story. Horace Pritchard, an employe of a contracting firm, gave his version of the mob's actions.

Three men remain among the witnesses to be heard. Ben Wells, British citizen and textile organizer, who was beaten by the mob, may be called to the witness stand, his attorneys said, if his condition is such that he can leave his hotel room, and R. B. McDonald and B. F. Leigh, Cabarrus County farmers, are expected to be asked to tell the story of the manner in which they interrupted the mob as it was beating Wells at a lonely spot, 8 miles from Concord, N. C.

The inquiry was begun by Judge Shaw Wednesday after labor headquarters in Gastonia, Bessemer City and Charlotte had been raided. In Gastonia, the three men were seized, brought through Charlotte and Concord, and taken to the country where Wells was beaten.

Solicitor John G. Carpenter, who is conducting the investigation for the Imp II Wins Chief Event at Regatta as Rival Is Forced Out.

Collision of Two Craft Is Thrilling Finale to Exhibitions.

Along a picturesque course flanked by thousands of spectators thronging the lengthy stretch of Potomac Park and the countless craft at anchor, an array of colorful speedboats churned the wind-ruffled waters of Georgetown Channel in eleven aquatic races throughout yesterday afternoon in reviving the President's Cup regatta as an annual national event.

Attracting a gallery that loomed even larger than the crowds that viewed the spectacular competition in its opening in 1926 and again in 1927, the regatta gave promise of bringing out a record crowd at 1 o'clock this afternoon when a similar program of eleven races opens with another contest of the sputtering outboards.

Aside from a trick of circumstances that minimized the importance of the President's Cup race in its single heat of the day when one of the two entries retired with engine trouble, the afternoon was marred only by a crash of two small outboard motorboats that momentarily endangered one of the youthful pilots before his rescue from his sinking craft.

Coming with startling suddenness at the boom of the starting gun for the final race in the growing dusk, this accident and a minor spill of another contestant at the eastern end of the course proved a thrilling finale for a crowd that had been treated repeatedly to exceptionally daring and clever exhibitions of driving.

Scheduled as the feature of the entire regatta, the President's Cup race, in competition for a leg on the gold trophy sponsored by Calvin Coolidge

SHEARER MAY FACE TREASON CHARGES

WITNESS LIST IS MADE

New York, Sept. 13.—A Washington dispatch to the New York World today says:

Should the Senate investigation into the activities of William B Shearer at Geneva Naval Conference in 1927 as the employe of three American shipbuilding companies show that they were opposing the United States Government, a charge of treason may result.

This possibility was seriously discussed at the Capitol today, showing how gravely the allegations of Shearer are regarded by certain senators. Those holding this view pointed out that the United States Government sent a delegation to Geneva to work out with other powers an agreement for limitation of naval armaments. With the backing of Congress, the Government on several occasions has gone on record as favoring such agreements. Therefore an effort to break down negotiations undertaken by the Government with other powers might well be construed as an attack upon the United States Government which would put it in the catagory of treason.

Senator Shortridge, chairman of the subcommittee of the committee on naval affairs appointed to conduct the investigation ordered by the Senate at the instance of Senator Borah, made it clear tody tht there is no disposition to prejudge the case by any member of the subcommittee. He will proceed on the theory that the accused are presumed to be innocent until proven guilty. Everybody will

Freighter Is Lost in Gale; Crew of 26 Believed Dead

Tug Brings to Port Pieces of Wreckage of Lake Michigan Steamer—Fails to Find Bodies—Coast Guard Boat Begins Search for Missing Men.

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—The fate of the freighter Andaste, missing since it started for Chicago last Monday night in the teeth of a Lake Michigan gale, became known tonight with the arrival here of the tug Bertha G, which brought in part of the wreckage. Captain and crew of the Andaste, numbering 26 men, are believed lost.

Capt. George Van Hall, master of the Bertha G, reported he found wreckage of the Andaste strewn for several miles about 14 miles out in Lake Michigan and 40 miles south of here. The Bertha G brought in the door of the cabin occupied by Capt. A. L. Anderson, of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., master of the Andaste.

George Evans and Joe Collins, members of the crew, who remained behind when the Andaste started on its last voyage, identified the door and also woodwork from the interior of Capt. Anderson's cabin. Capt. Van Hall said he saw no bodies.

After Capt. Van Hall had reported, a Coast Guard boat put out from here to search for bodies of the missing men. The tugs Liberty and Freedom, of the Materials Construction Co., owners of the Andaste, will join in the search tomorrow.

Those on board when the Andaste left here Monday night, as listed by the owners of the boat, were:

Capt. A. L. Anderson, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., master.

Capt. Charles Brown, Grand Haven, first mate.

Claude J. Kibby, Pennville, Mich., chief engineer.

J. J. McCadde, Cleveland, Ohio, second mate.

What About the New Money?

The Post tomorrow will publish a story concerning the small-sized paper currency that is certain to stir a controversy. Chief Moran, of the United States Secret Service, likes the new little Bills. But there is another side of the story and it is related in The Post tomorrow.

"The Seven Dials Mystery." Intriguing title isn't it? And Post readers will find it an intriguing story, a real detective thriller from the pen of Agatha Christie. The first installment appears tomorrow.

Sundays and holidays in Ontario Province, Canada, are not all they are cracked up to be for the American in search of a glass of beer or flagon of ale, according to a story written by a Post staff writer who recently crossed the border.

We Americans must have "our weeks," so next week has been designated "Constitution Week." It has been estimated that not more than one person out of every 2,000 in this country has read the Federal Constitution and its amendments. How "Constitution Week" will be observed in Washington is told in a story in tomorrow's edition.

The disclosure of an impending increase in the city's water rate was made in The Post Friday. Another story about the water department appears on this page today. Still another, and one that will be of interest to every District taxpayer, is scheduled for tomorrow.

Gallinger Patients Get Better Court Treatment

Hospital Authorities, After Post Expose, Declare That Inmates Brought to Lunacy Hearings Will Receive Service "As Near Perfect as Possible."

Gallinger Hospital authorities yesterday informed the office of United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder that in future patients of the institution who are brought to the District Supreme Court for lunacy hearings will receive service "as near perfect as possible."

This statement followed an article in The Post on August 31 in which it was pointed out that patients of the hospital were being brought to the courthouse and kept in a crowded witness room for several hours without food, water, adequate guards or attention to comfort. The article in The Post exposed a condition that had been tolerated by hospital officials for years, according to court attaches.

Yesterday, however, was different. It marked the first lunacy hearings since The Post article, and new conditions were so marked that praise for The Post was on the lips of veteran court attaches who for years have deplored the inhuman manner in which the patients were treated when brought into the court building.

Fourteen persons, ten women and four men, were brought to the courthouse yesterday from the hospital. They were housed in the same little witness room off Criminal Court No. 2 where Justice [illegible] L. Siddons is holding [illegible] week. But instead of the lone policeman who had to cope with the crowd on August 31 there were two policemen, two nurses and an attendant. Ice water was provided in the room where the patients were held and a large quantity of food was brought in the hospital ambulance and stored in the courthouse icebox.

In addition, Dr. D. Percy Hickling, District alienist, and an official of the hospital, and two other psychiatrists best indications are that the final figure agreed upon for this country will be around 255,000 tons. There will be disparity there, of course, of 35,000 tons, and it will be on this difference in tonnage that the much-discussed yardstick will have to be applied.

Definite Accord Not Reached.

There has been no agreement reached between Hoover and the British premier on the detailed application of this yardstick, and none will be reached before the general conference is held. The negotiations between the two countries have advanced to the stage, however, where they are willing to go into conference, even on the troublesome cruiser question.

Secretary of State Stimson yesterday, in making known that the two powers were ready for the conference, said that the cruiser problem, in his opinion, had been overemphasized in the light of the much broader undertaking of general reduction.

Most of the negotiations with Great Britain have, of course, concerned cruisers, on which the two countries have been so far apart heretofore. It was cruisers that wrecked the Geneva conference.

As the administration sees it, the question is likely to resolve itself into simply one of whether 30,000 tons should be spread over thre cruisers of the 10,000-ton class, with 8-inch guns, or four or five smaller cruisers with 8-inch guns.

Held Minor Question.

It is looked upon by the administration as a small question when considered with the whole undertaking. The point about the 30,000 tons in controversy is that the two countries have agreed upon the size of cruisers and size of guns this country shall have up to a tonnage of 255,000. The remaining 30,000 tons or so have not yet proved amenable to the yardstick.

This country now has approximately 300,000 in destroyer tonnage and Great Britain 200,000. Under the replacement plan to be proposed, each country would have between 125,000 and 150,000 by 1936.

In this connection, Secreary of the Navy Adams announced yesterday a plan to decommission "a number" of destroyers.

Submarine tonnage is now virtually at a parity between the two countries, the United States having a tonnage of 87,000 and Great Britain 84,000. The replacement program here would be so formulated as to leave both navies below their present strength in 1936.

Stimson Emphasizes Saving.

The scope of the undertaking was emphasized by Secretary Stimson when he said that unless there is an agreement to advance the Washington arms agreement five years the nations will have to begin replacing battleships in 1931 at a cost of $37,000,000 each.

No one is more alive to the beneficial effects of stabilization to the Navy than the Navy people themselves Secretary Stimson declared. They are confronted now with constantly changing public opinion. Should an agreement be reached by the five powers, the Navy's program will be laid out definitely for years in advance.

By 1936 the whole atmosphere around armaments will have been so changed, he said, that there will be an entirely different view held by all of the nations. Another conference may then be called to effect further reductions.

Navy to Decommission 35 to 57 Destroyers

(Associated Press.)

Because the boilers and engines of 57 destroyers now on active service are unsatisfactory and show signs of wearing out, the Navy Department announced yesterday that at least 35 and possibly all of these ships would be decommissioned with a view to their eventual disposal.

The Navy's active destroyer force will not be reduced, however, as each destroyer taken out of the line will be replaced from the 159 which are now tied up in reserve at Philadelphia and San Diego.

The destroyers to be decommissioned are of the Fore River type, a group of war-built ships which Admiral Hughes, chief of operations, said had always been troublesome and would be expensive to refit.

Should all of the 57 unsatisfactory ships be disposed of, the preponderance of destroyers which this country has held over Great Britain would be greatly reduced. The present American destroyer force is 262, compared with 184 for the British fleet.

The decommissioning is to be accomplished gradually. The Navy deliberately chose to wear out the vessels in service, keeping the superior ships in reserve, Admiral Hughes said.

ROCKVILLE MOVED BY CIVIC PROTEST

Pike Residents Perturbed by Commercial Plant Encroachment.

PETITIONS ARE FILED

Nearly 100 residents along the Rockville pike last night appeared before the Montgomery County commissioners, sitting as a board on zoning appeals in the Bethesda County Building, to oppose what they term an encroachment of industry upon one of the most beautiful residential sections in the East. The board was considering the appeals of the Congressional Airport, Inc., and two other companies for rezoning two tracts of land along the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad from residential to commercial, all which had been disapproved by the Maryland and National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The Philfuels Co., of Bartlesville, Okla., manufacturers of liquefied gas, the second appealing company, asks for a permit to allow the construction of a distributing plant for domestic fuel. The company plans to sell gas in tanks to consumers who are not served by ordinary means.

The third application is for the changing of a tract of land containing 1.87 acres, located east of the railroad and north of the Halpine-Biers Mill road, from a residential area. This application was filed by Frank G. Hewett.

The property along the road is zoned as residential for 300 feet on each side. The airport is behind the 300-foot zone. Maj. Harry M. Horton appeared for the airport.

Edwin C. Brandenburg, a lawyer, declared, in opposing the airport's application, that he had been public spirited enough to withhold his property from industrial uses and that he had purchased several unsightly structures to improve the pike. He said Gilbert Grosvenor, of the National Geographical Society, had paid $15,000 for a two-acre gasoline station site to improve the appearance of the place. He charged that commercial enterprises would not increase the value of the property, but every one of the estates along the road had enjoyed an increase in value because of the zoning ordinance.

Carl Corby said that 20 years ago his father surveyed Maryland and Virginia for a home site, and had decided on Rockville Pike. He objected to granting the petitions.

B. W. Parker, president of the Bethesda chamber of commerce, urged that the pike be considered as a whole from the District line to Rockville. He said that to grant the petitions would be to create an entering wedge which eventually would be driven deeper until business would crowd residences from the pike, resulting in a solid line of business houses from the District line to Rockville.

William Trettyman, attorney for the gas company, declared that during all the talk by property owners one point had not been brought out, and that concerned the working man who can not afford palatial estates but might be employed by the industries.

The petitioners urged that the territory contiguous to the railroad should be commercial property.

The board reserved decision last night, as it wishes to consider all the testimony first.

be accorded a fair hearing, Senator Shortridge said.

The subcommittee will meet tomorrow to prepare a list of witnesses to be subpenaed, the order in which they will be heard and the time the subpenas will be returnable.

Chairman Shortridge indicated that several days will pass before the inquiry gets actively under way. Senator Allen, of Kansas, one of the three members of the subcommittee, has been subpenaed as a witness in a court case in Wichita and will not be able to return to Washington before the middle of next week. The expectation is that the first public hearing will not be held before Wednesday, and possibly Thursday.

The Shearer case was the subject of brief discussion on the floor of the Senate today when Senator Hale, of Maine, chairman of the naval committee, rose to take issue with published statements sthat he had washed his hands of the whole matter after the appointment of the subcommittee.

Senator Hale explained that, by reason of his position as chairman of the committee, he is necessarily in constant communication with officials of the Navy Department, and anything he might say or do might be open to the construction that it represented the view of the department. The senator added that he had referred newspaper men to Senator Shortridge for information about the Shearer inquiry, but said that he would keep in constant touch with its progress. Therefore, he did not want to be understood as having washed his hands of the matter. He will however, not interfere in any way with the work of the subcommittee.

Three Posts Contested In Lynchburg Election

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 13.—Three contests are indicated in the election to be held here November 5 for local offices, according to a report just made to S. G. Hamner, of the city electoral board, by Hubert H. Martin, clerk of the corporation court.

Candidates who have filed notices, the Democratic nominees being named first, are: State Senate, R. H. Langhorne and W. H. Burruss; House of Delegates, Joseph C. Smith and R. C. GALLINGER INQUIRY IS CALLED FARCICAL Report Was 'Miserable Job of Whitewashing,' Labor Paper Declares.

FURTHER ACTION ASKED

In an editorial captioned "Gallinger Whitewashed," the current issue of The Trades Unionist, official organ of the Washington Central Labor Union, charges the investigation of the municipal hospital "was a good deal of a farce and the report a miserable job of whitewash daubing."

"From the very start," the paper declares, "it was an investigation for vindication and not one for fact-finding."

The editorial follows:

"GALLINGER WHITEWASHED.

"The Public Welfare Board has completed its investigation of Gallinger Municipal Hospital and has turned in its report. The investigation itself was a good deal of a farce. The report is a miserable job of whitewash daubing.

"From the very start it was an investigation for vindication and not one for fact-finding. It has justified all the fears that the welfare board might not be unprejudiced and therefore competent to go as deeply into the situation as the circumstances warranted, for the hospital is under control of the board and the board is responsible for its well-being and well-doing.

"In what has taken place there has been too much of the aspect of an institution investigating itself.

"The report in all its essential particulars is a complete bill of health for Gallinger.

"One would judge that the investigators went at their task with a predetermined diagnosis involving nothing more than a local trouble, like an attack of hot-weather rash. Their examination dealt with superficialities. What they found that was deemed worthy of criticism or condemnation were matters that might easily have been discovered and corrected in the ordinary daily routine of hospital management. Finding these minor troubles, of course, will result in some good; but vastly of greater benefit would have been a thorough-going, disinterested, top-to-botton investigation.

"For the chances are that at Gallinger the main ailment is not so much a surface trouble as it is a condition of mind. The general reputation of the institution throughout Washington is that of being hardened and heartless. In its dealings with patients, who had every right to be in the world to be there and to be accorded decent treatment, it forgot to be kind and tolerant. It assumed high and mighty airs, and even sometimes, in order to be impressive, judging by the articles by the young and enterprising reporter for The Washington Post, acted as judge and jury and meted out punishment as if the victim were in truth a criminal and not a patient entitled to tender consideration.

"The attitude of this newspaper toward the investigation has not been antagonistic. We thought it a mistake for the Public Welfare Board, so vitally concerned in the hospitals management itself, to undertake the task. We still think it was a mistake. The report proves it to have been a mistake."

"Several days ago, when it was not anticipated that the report of the investigation would be so immediately forthcoming, the following editorial was written to appear under the heading, 'Gallinger's Confession':

"'Even before the investigation started Gallinger Municipal Hospital had begun to mend its ways. A general anticipatory clean-up had taken place. Pots, pans, floors, walls and beds had been scoured. Now the hospital staff has been reorganized in certain important particulars. The whole attitude of the institution seems to have changed for the better. Smiles instead of scowls are the order of the day over at the far end of Capitol Hill.

"'Gallinger at last appears to be awake to the fact, too long overlooked or disregarded, that it was created for those who were to be its patients and not for doctors and nurses and manhandlers who act as if its only purpose was to furnish them a sinecure.'

"'We hope the new conditions are of the lasting variety. They can be made permanent only by establishing and adhering to a rule of kicking out the first employe who mistreats a patient or performs an unkind act unnecessarily.'

"We have no changes to make in the above, but rather we would add to it what we have already said to the effect that the Public Welfare Board missed entirely the larger matters at issue in the Gallinger controversy. The good that has resulted has come from the fact that an investigation was under way and that the public gaze was upon the institution rather than from the results which were to be and which since have been given to the public.

"The Public Welfare Board, in its report, indicated it was not unaware of its own shortcomings with respect to the inquiry. It recommended a further examination by disinterested Government medical authorities. We hope that this will be done."

HOSPITAL PATIENTS CARED FOR IN COURT

were on hand, and frequently went into the witness room to inquire as to the welfare of the patients.

Justice Siddons gave the lunacy cases preference, and when he recessed court at 12:40 o'clock the cases involving eight women had been settled. These patients were immediately placed in the hospital ambulance and taken to the hospital for lunch. A policeman and a nurse accompanied them.

With their departure, two women and four men were left at the courthouse, their cases still pending. The attendant said that it was time to feed the remaining patients and at the suggestion of Deputy United States Marshal James S. McCarthy that the patients should be given a little fresh air they were taken out on the spacious lawn of Judiciary Park. There in a shady spot under the trees they were fed.

The menu, while nothing to tempt the appetite of an epicure, was thoroughly enjoyed by the patients, all devouring the food with relish. Cheese and meat sandwiches and hot coffee, heated in the basement of the courthouse, made up the menu. The policeman who remained and the nurse and attendant joined in the meal.

Deputy United States marshals, as usual, were on hand to see that none of the patients escaped. They were asked to partake of the repast, but refused.

Consumption of the lunch, which was served by the attendant, occupied more than a half hour. After it was finished the patients were taken back into the witness room, where they remained, except for the brief time they were in the courtroom, until all the cases had been disposed of. Then they were returned to the hospital.

Although the two policemen, the two nurses and the attendant were sufficient during the morning to care for the needs of the fourteen patients, deputy United States marshals were stationed near and in the witness room to lend a hand, if needed. While lunacy matters are strictly affairs of the District Government and not of the United States, United States Marshal Snyder has always assigned deputies to help out when lunacy hearings were held. Yesterday the marshal was absent, out of town on his vacation, but his chief deputy, Stephen B. Callahan, assigned three men to the task. They were not particularly needed yesterday, except during the lunch hour, but in the past they have had to guard the patients, escort them to restrooms and care for them in many other ways.

That condtions yesterday were much improved can be shown by quoting one of the attaches of the Supreme Court Building. He had viewed the ice water and the presence of the nurses and the white-coated attendant with wonder, and when the patients were taken out to eat, he expressed himself thus: "Gee! Somebody sure has stirred up Gallinger Hospital."

MOB THREAT TO KILL MAN BARED IN COURT

State, was named this afternoon by Saylor as being among the crowd that gathered outside his house.

Maj. A. L. Bulwinkle, former United States congressman from Gastonia, was said by Saylor to be with Carpenter at the time. Bulwinkle is attorney for the Manville-Jenckes Co., owners of the Loray textile mill, where the Gastonia labor disturbances started.

Woman Tells of Threats.

Threats by members of the Gastonia mob that swept through three North Carolina counties Monday night to kill Ben Wells were described by Mrs. Helen Lodge, of Gastonia, before Judge Shaw today.

Mrs. Lodge operates a boarding house in Gastonia, which was visited by the mob and from which Wells, Lell and Saylor were kidnaped and carried to a point in Cabarrus County, where Wells was flogged.

Mrs. Lodge said that William Pickering, a Loray cotton mill worker, led a crowd of men who were singing "Some sort of a song," into the house. "We aren't going to have these communists" she said Pickering told the people in the house.

The crowd then seized Wells, she said, and asked him to speak. He had said only a few words, she added, when they started yelling, "Kill him, take him for a ride."

The men then took Wells to the porch of the house and there were more cries of "Kill him, kill him."

Man Slapped Her, Claim.

About this time she said the telephone rang. She answered it and told the party, "I can't hear you, the committee of 100 is here." A man, she said she thought was A. G. Morehead, Loray mill superintendent, slapped her on the mouth, and her daughter scratched one of them.

The crowd then took Wells, Saylor and Lell to an automobile. She said she saw a man carrying her typewriter away and ran after him. He threw the typewriter in the automobile, she said, and as he did this she said she saw a policeman. She said she knew it was a policeman because she saw his cap and coat.

The men under arrest, who were being given a hearing before Judge Shaw this afternoon, are A. G. Morehead, William Pickering, Carl Holloway, Dewey Carver, Tom Carver, Smiley Lewis, John Holly, Horace Lane, C. Holly, Oscar Goodman, Dr. Lee Johnson, Patrolman C. M. Ferguson, Patrolman T. A. Gilbert and former Policeman A. J. Roach.

ANGERED SCHOOLBOY KILLS GIRL AND SELF

Youth of 16, Irked by Spat Over Book, Causes Double Tragedy.

HIS BODY FOUND NEAR

Port Angeles, Wash., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—A double tragedy that started as a spat between two school children and ended in their death brought sorrow today to the little community of Joyce, west of here, in the forests of the Olympic peninsula.

While riding from their homes in Joyce to the Lyre River school in a bus yesterday, Jesse Spurrior, 16, seized a textbook from Helen McClaine, 13, and threatened to tear it. Helen protested and complained to the bus driver who made Jesse return the book. In doing so the boy said to the girl:

"You'll be sorry for that."

Last night Helen and her sister, Leona, age 10, were walking through a fern-lined trail in the woods near their home with milk, as was their custom, carefree and thoughtless of the incident in the bus.

About a quarter of a mile from their home the girls were suddenly confronted by the Spurrior boy who carried a rifle. He levelled the gun and fired. The bullet went through Helen's body. The younger girl ran home and told her father, C. J. McClaine, a rancher, but before he could reach her she was dead.

A sheriff's posse, hurriedly formed, started in search of the boy. Just before midnight Jesse's body was found with a bullet hole through the head, about 200 yards from where he had shot the girl. The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Spurrior, of Joyce. Both families were well-known and respected in the district.

chairmanship of the textiles subcommittees.

"'The textile manufacturers have not only been generous to me,'" Harrison quoted Bingham as having likely said, "'they have also contributed to my campaign. Don't take this committee away from me when I want to serve these special interests in Connecticut.'"

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, was given these lines: "I know more about steel than the chairman of the committee knows about sugar," to which Harrison said others replied: "Then you better take the chairmanship of the steel schedule."

Next he drew a picture of Senator Sackett, of Kentucky, asking for the chairmanship of the silk subcommittee.

"Now boys, you all know Horace Cheney," Harrison had Sackett saying. "He's my friend. Give me that committee."

"And then they came to the earthenware and pottery schedule," the Mississippian went on. "I can hear the voice of my friend, the senator from New Jersey (Senator Edge) saying:

"'I have been appointed Ambassador to France but you boys know my friends want me to stay until some of these schedules are completed. Here is the one time I can serve these friends of mine in New Jersey who manufacture earthenware goods and pottery. Give me the chairmanship of this subcommittee.'"

CONFEDERATE HITS REUNION REFUSAL

Sneed, 84, Head of Southern Veterans, Calls G. A. R. Action Un-American.

IDEA NOT TO BE PRESSED

Lubbock, Tex., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Interspersing a few "suhs" in emphatic fashion, Richard A. Sneed, 84 years old, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans, said here today the Southern organization would not urge any further measure than an indorsement of a reunion of the Blue and Gray. Sneed, who lives at Oklahoma City, came here to visit his daughter, Mrs. Fred Snyder.

The action of the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in tabling a resolution looking to a reunion of the wearers of the gray and the blue, was termed "characteristically un-American" by Commander Sneed.

"Those who opposed in apparent irate manner the reunion plan, which was designed in the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic, doubtless never smelt gunpowder in the Civil War," he said.

Handsome and stately, the commander of the diminishing Gray ranks said he held no ill feeling toward veterans of the Northern Army.

"Bitterness Obliterated."

"All bitterness which I harbored immediately after the war has been obliterated in peace," he said. "I think it un-Christian, un-American and unmanly to continue as separate forces.

"We could say to our children by our action in reunion that we are a united force, and ready to pass out of this life a united army, the forefathers of more generations who stand undivided.

"Within less than a score of years there will not be a survivor of the great conflict. It would be pungently regrettable, perhaps, to our children if such a reunion were not recorded in history."

The commander has thick, soft, gray hair and a short beard. He frequently smiles, revealing a set of firm teeth. His voice is clear and he speaks distinctly.

Wounded in Civil Conflict.

He wore a black, string bow cravat, a standing collar and a dark serge suit as he spoke to a newspaper reporter.

The Southern commander was captured three times and wounded once during the conflict of the sixties. He entered the war at the age of 16 and was a sergeant at the close.

For the last four years he has been treasurer of the State of Oklahoma. Prior to that he served as pension commissioner and secretary of state. He is a native of Mississippi.

"I am the age of Texas and Florida," he said and smiled. "I came into the Union in 1845."

Albemarle School Head in Warning

Children Are Being Used to Work Illegally, He Says.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 13.—Although more pupils are in schools in Albemarle County this year than ever before, Superintendent A. L. Bennett stated today that he knew of a number of cases where children are being kept out of school to pick apples, in violation of the new compulsory education law. He called attention to the fact that under the new ruling any one who employed a delinquent child is as guilty as the parent, and will be prosecuted. Pursuant to his program to "stamp out illiteracy" in Albemarle, the superintendent declared that violators of the new law will be brought to account.

Enrollment in the county schools, which opened last Friday, is greater than ever before, with the result that rooms in some of the larger schools are "badly overcrowded," according to a statement by the superintendent.

and a quanaity of numbers slips were on a table.

Making three raids in the course of an hour, Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman and his vice squad yesterday continued their intensified campaign against gambling establishments, and took into custody five alleged "policy game" operators, all of whom are under bond to appear in Police Court this morning before Judge Gus A. Schuldt and Assistant United States Attorney Ernest Davis, who recently have given renewed support to the police drive.

Those arrested yesterday were Joseph Turner, 22 years old, of 342 I street southwest, and Bert Washington, 27, of 819 Delaware avenue southwest, both colored, who were taken in a raid at 602 Four-and-a-half street southwest; Cecil Allen, 37, of 1249 Evarts street northeast, and Waneta Smith, 20, of 1627 U street northwest, where both colored women were taken into custody; and Sandy Sneed, colored, 21 years old, who was arrested in a raid at 1808 Florida avenue northwest.

Slips for use in "numbers" gambling were seized at each place, and small amounts of money were found. Sergt. Letterman reported. Charges of violations of section 865 of the code—setting up a gaming table—were preferred against each of the five, and bond was fixed at $2,000 each.

Twelve Offenders Trapped.

Twelve men were trapped last night when detectives of the First Precinct raided the second floor of 618 Twelfth street northwest, and seized a quantity of equipment, alleged to have been used in horse race betting.

The names of ten men were taken and they were released as witnesses. The other two, Joseph A. Sullivan, 28, of 601 Girard street northwest, and Leo J. Wallach, 32, of Cabin John, Md., were charged with setting up a gaming table and were liberated in $2,000 bail each. The raiding squad comprised J. R. LePoe, H. G. Wanamaker and A. D. Mansfield.

L. J. Edson, 2 2years old, of 1427 P street northwest, was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Second Precinct police on charges of permitting gaming in connection with alleged racing handbook operations, failure to have a license for the cigar store he is maintaining and failure to have a permit of occupancy. He was released on $2,000 bond after his arrest by Capt. O. T. Davis and Policeman E. C. Shelton.

FIST OF POLICEMAN HALTS ACCUSED MAN

Youth Is Jailed After Six or More Alleged Holdups in Brief Period.

DRIVER OF TAXI HELD UP

An alleged ambition in the field of banditry proved the downfall of Robert Wesley Carr, 21 years old. Said to have confessed to a half dozen holdups early yesterday morning, last night he was a much tamer youth as he contemplated his situation at the Third Precinct Police Station.

The youthful alleged bandit, who lived at Capitol Heights, Md., was halted by Frank Prince, Prince Georges County policeman, with a blow to the chin after Carr is said to have terrorized occupants of the Park Central Apartment House at 1900 F street northwest and held up and then bound a taxi driver, Clifton Disney, of 2116 G street northwest. In addition Carr is said by police to have entered the apartment of Mrs. E. W. Schaller in the Park Central and to have taken a watch and a diamond ring, which he took to Baltimore and pawned.

Chauffeur Tied Up.

The youth, who eluded a number of policemen at the Park Central after entering six apartments, was driving the taxicab of the driver he is said to have held up when he encountered the Prince Georges County policeman. The chauffeur was tied up in the cab.

Seeing an approaching auto, Carr, it is alleged, stopped the taxicab, turned out the lights, and waited with the revolver beside him in the front seat. After the driver of the other car had stopped and then approached the taxicab on foot, Carr pretended to need help. After talking a few minutes he struck at the policeman, missed, and was himself knocked out by a better-aimed fist of Prince, officers say.

Confession Is Revealed.

Upon being brought back to Washington Carr, it is claimed, readily confessed his escapades and, in addition, was identified by his alleged victims.

An investigation of Carr's record at police headquarters disclosed that he is on three-year probation, imposed on a robbery charge, and is also wanted for housebreaking in connection with a theft on August 27 in the same apartment he robbed yesterday morning, according to the police.

It was said at the Park Central that Carr formerly was employed at the building as an electrician during its construction and consequently had a pass key, presumably made as a duplicate of the one he turned in when he finished the work.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE recently widely heralded "promotion" of James Francis Burke now develops to be one of rather doubtful quantity. It was his election to the Republican national committee. Most observers saw in it a slap at Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, because Burke had just been engaged in a set-to with her.

It appears now, however, that the election, or promotion, carried with it a desk in the Barr Building headquarters, and, of course, a desk in the Barr Building headquarters is not to be ashamed of, but a desk there implies no desk at the White House.

Actually, Burke never had a desk at the White House, but he had the run of the place, and it was generally assumed that just as soon as the alterations to the executive offices were completed there would be an office with a desk and perhaps a stenographer for him.

* * * *

But instead he will hold forth at the Barr Building in the future. The explanation is that he has finished the work he was doing for the President, and that quite naturally there is no need of his hanging around the White House any more.

Just what was the nature of this work was never disclosed. It was a work with ramifications, however, and work that carried him in and out of the President's offices frequently.

It is entirely reasonable, of course, to assume that, he having finished the work the President had for him, the administration did not want his switch to the Barr Building to be given such interpretations as were given to the departure of Mrs. Willebrandt, Col. Donovan and Dr. Work from the Hoover fold, so that the idea of electing him to the executive committee was cooked up. At any rate, his promotion, so to speak, can no longer be looked upon as a slap at Mrs. Willebrandt.

* * * *

HIS surroundings will not be as delightful in the Barr Building as they were in the White House or his associates as congenial. For one thing, about the time he gets installed there will be Col. Horace Mann putting down a typewriter right beside him. It should be a good Barr Building that can house both men.

Some of the old-time cynics around here are inclined, in fact, to compare Burke's promotion with the promotion that the late Speaker Joe Cannon once gave to Charley Hawkins. Hawkins was on the Indian affairs committee and wanted to stay there, but he caused so much trouble that Cannon was beseeched to take him off.

Cannon was reluctant to do anything to hurt Charley's feelings, because he needed all the friends he could get in those days when his power was being challenged. But he had to do something. So he called for Hawkins and told him that he liked him so much he was going to transfer him to the foreign affairs committee.

Hawkins insisted that he wanted to remain on Indian affairs, that it was that committee that his constituents were interested in. But Cannon insisted that he had to give him a promotion, whereupon Hawkins told him a story, and it is too bad that it can not be told.

14,000 CITY WATER METERS BROKEN, POST REPORTER FINDS

tion of correcting this serious flaw in its operation before demanding higher rates.

A glance at the records of these defective meters, kept in a special file in the Water Department, leads to some rather pertinent question which the Water Department might be expected to answer.

Now could it happen that out of a total of 73,738 District-owned water meters in place, so great a number as 13,936 are out of order?

At first glance, the answer might be found in a paragraph of the department's report, which says that "more than 6,000 defective meters were removed, repaired and replaced during the year."

Increase in Defectives.

At second glance, however, that report merely serves to complicate the question, for it shows that during the year there were in excess of 20,000 defective meters, or more than 27 per cent of the total of 73,738.

The answer may be that so many meters are out of order because the Water Department, it is charged, installs the cheapest meters it can buy, without regard to practicability or efficiency.

A good water meter costs from $12 to about $15 for the best, it is said. Such a meter can be relied upon to give at least fifteen years of service, and many will remain in first-class order as long as twenty years.

The water meters the District of Columbia buys and installs cost between $6 and $7 each, and if one of these lasts any longer than three years it is an occasion for a public holiday.

For the installation of 630 meters during the fiscal year just ended, the Water Department paid a total of $9,571, which included $7,061 for labor and only $2,510, or less than $4 each, for material, cuts and transportation. The reason this material cost was so low is because not even all of the "new" meters installed by the Water Department are really new, a substantial portion of them being meters reclaimed from premises where water service has been abandoned, it was learned.

But it cost the Water Department more than $10 each, or $65,057 in all, to repair the 6,000 meters which were overhauled after taxpayers had protested about their meters being out of order.

$38,009 for Repairs.

In the preceding year it cost the department $38,009 of the taxpayers' money to repair these cheap meters, while in 1927 the cost of repairs was $33,244; in 1926 it was $25,444, and in 1925 it was $40,336. The total money drawn from the District water fund in the past five years to repair worn out and defective meters of the quality installed by the Water Department would have paid the cost of more than 16,000 meters of standard high quality, or more than enough to replace all of the 13,936 meters now out of service for want of repairs.

The reason the number of defective meters has been permitted to increase to such alarming proportions may also be ascribed to the desire of J. S. Garland, superintendent of the department, to appear to be operating his office on an economical basis, although the figures which go into the meter-maintenance column of his annual report are now beginning to assume a magnitude which is indicative of anything but economy.

Users Must Protest.

It appears from a survey of the records of the Water Department that when a water meter goes haywire, it stays that way until the taxpayer discovers that all is not well and starts to complain. If he complains frequently enough and forcibly enough, the department may survey the situation and remedy the defect.

But unless the taxpayer put up enough argument to make it apparent to the officials of the department that he means business, his meter is apt to remain out of service indefinitely. Some of the meters now on the department's defective list have been there since the early days of the current decade.

Here is what happens when a District-owned water meter's pulse goes dead:

Good for One Year.

During the first year of its service, one of the meters of the type now in use in Washington gives a fairly accurate record of the amount of water consumed by the taxpayer to whose pipeline it is attached. During the second year it begins to clog and runs slower and slower, until some time during the third year it generally dies altogether.

That clogging explains the reason why so many taxpayers get a lower water bill for their second year than for the first year of service of a new meter; the bill does not present a true picture of the actual amount of water used by the consumer, thus accounting for a certain part of the 8,950,700,000 gallons, or $716,000 worth, of water which the department reports as mysteriously missing during the past year.

With absolutely no way to determine the amount of water used by those 13,936 consumers whose meters are not metering, a vast proportion of the remaining shortage, variously estimated as high as 90 per cent, is thus revealed as going into consumption entirely unrecorded after it leaves the pumping stations.

10 Per Cent Leakage.

A leakage of 10 per cent is considered normal by cities throughout the United States. If elimination of this vast number of defective meters is effected to cut the loss to 10 per cent of the total 1929 consumption, or not more than 2,685,223,656 gallons, the present $716,000 loss would be cut to $202,800, and the saving thereby would constitute substantially more than the increased revenue which would accrue to the water fund through the 30 per cent raise in rates sought by the water department. These figures are arrived at by computation at the rate of $80 per million gallons, which is the estimated cost of water in the District of Columbia.

When a meter ceases to register, instead of repairing it or replacing it with a new one, it is the practice of the water department to allow the defective meter to remain in place inoperative, while the consumer is billed thereafter on an "estimated consumption" basis corresponding to the amount of the last bill rendered while the meter was still working.

Bill Is Estimated.

Thus, if a taxpayer received a bill for $18 for 1926 a year during which his meter registered, and during the following year the meter ceased to function, the water department would merely assume that if he used $18 worth of water while his meter was working he must have used the same amount when the meter stopped, and the consumer therefore would get a bill for $18, although the amount might be "estimated" a few cents above or below that figure for the sake of variety and to avoid arousing the suspicions of the taxpayer.

The same procedure would be followed, whether the last recording of the defective meter was $7 or $7,000, and regardless of whether the consumer used no water at all or left all his faucets running full force continuously. One instance is reported by a consumer who for several years had been receiving a bill for $10 for water consumption each year. When the new rates went into effect on July 1 1927, he was billed for the ensuing year at $11.25, with the explanation that the increase was due to the 12½ per cent advance instituted by the District Commissioners at that time.

IMP II IS WINNER IN REGATTA EVENT

Only One of Two Entries in President's Cup Race Reaches Finish.

FINAL CONTESTS TODAY

when President, resolved itself in its opening heat to a race solely against time by the speed boat. The Imp II, owned and piloted by Richard C. Hoyt, of New York City, which will enter the final two heats this afternoon with a coveted stake on the cup, now being held by Mrs. Delphine Dodge Baker, whose Miss Syndicate was winner in 1927.

With the ineligibility of the expected Washington entry of W. S. Corby's Jayee III, which was to have been driven by George Wood, Detroit motorboat manufacturer and brother of the famous Gar Wood, the widely-advertised event opened with only The Imp II and Jersey Lightning, owned by Gerald C. Holbrook, of Red Bank, N. J., and driven by Capt. F. C. Ericson, veteran speedboat pilot of the same city.

Imp Takes Lead at Once.

Getting off to an impressive start promptly at 3:30 o'clock, The Imp speeded to the fore to stretch rapidly the distance between it and its rival, which developed engine trouble almost at the start and finally sputtered dead in approaching the official boat for its third and midway lap.

The Imp II, almost a full lap ahead at this point, cruised along its remaining distance of the 15-mile event to finish in 19 minutes 5 and 74-100 seconds at an average speed of 47.131 miles an hour, comparatively slow time for this boat. The Jersey Lightning about five minutes later repaired the trouble and resumed the race against time, but was flagged out before finishing to clear the course for the next race.

It remained for the outboards, developing an astonishing speed for their size, to keep the crowd on edge. The tiny boats streaked their roaring paths up and down the course, frequently bounding on and off the water as they caught a retreating swell from a preceding craft or smashed boldly into a channel stirred into a dangerous chop by an occasional fitful wind.

Diver Struggles in Water.

Just as eleven of these speeders came bolting across the starting line for the final event, the craft driven by Travis Chestnut, of Jacksonville, Fla., collided in an unexplained manner with the boat handled by Frank Davis, of Middletown, Del., winner last week in the Atlantic City regatta. Chestnut was hurled into the water and struggled frantically until he took hold of the tip end of his almost completely submerged outboard. One of the numerous Coast Guard boats that patroled the course hauled him in and aided Davis in his stove-in boat.

Another of the several spills of the afternoon came in the final moments of the last race, but no record of this or the other minor accidents of the afternoon was made by officials when prompt rescues eliminated the danger of any real tragedy.

Probably the most exciting race of the opening program was the event for Class C outboards, which brought into spirited competition nineteen starters in the largest field of the afternoon. The course was almost ideal, and the huge gallery was treated to the picturesque sight of an Army blimp soaring low overhead, a squadron of five Army airplanes flying close by in V-formation, and almost a dozen other Navy and commercial planes droning in the near distance.

Gresh Wins Event.

Jockeying a few minutes for position, the outboards made a fast getaway amid the cheers of the assemblage and gradually began stringing out over the 5-mile grind in groups of two and three. Earl Gresh, of St Petersburg, Fla., competing in his fortieth race of the season, crossed the line a winner with a speed of 35.88 miles an hour, trailed closely by Alexander Masterson, of Greenwood Lake, N. J., in the Century Cyclone, and Louis Gadoci, of Stamford, Conn., in the D-336.

Both heats of the 151 hydroplane limited, a class of the speediest craft of the day, were copped from a representative field by Little One II, owned by Ralph D. Sheldon, and driven by Vern Squires, both of Jamestown, N. Y. He clipped the water at 45.69 miles an hour in the first heat, and 46.079 in the second.

In the initial heat he took the lead from seven other contenders in an almost perfect start and crossed the line followed by Lightning II, driven by Vincent Vacase, of Norfolk, Va., and the Black Hawk, driven by Joseph Thorpe, of Egg Harbor, N. J. In the latter heat, among five others, he was followed in second place by Bayhead II, owned by Chris Ripp and driven by Al Louvett, both of Jamaica, N. Y. Lightning II was third.

Seven Boats in Free-For-All.

The free-for-all, the next to last event, brought out a motley array of seven craft in which the Curtiss Wilgold III and the Carenaught, both owned by C. Roy Keys, of Buffalo, N. Y., finished first and second. The winner was piloted by William Elliott and the latter by Capt. H. W. Flickinger, both of Buffalo.

Anchored about the course were numerous craft, including the Coast Guard cutter, Boutwell, Capt. J. F. Ryan commanding, which served as the official boat; the Coast Guard cutter, Apache, on which President Hoover and his party is expected to view the races today; the Army ship, General D. H. Rucker, the U. S. S. Porpoise, the Lighthouse Tender Mayflower, and many other pleasure boats.

Timing and scoring for the regatta yesterday were assumed by the American Atuomobile Association, represented by W. D. Edenburn, of Detroit, Mich., member of its contest board, and Capt. R. A. Leavell, also of Detroit, official A. A. A. timer, both well known figures in the racing world. Others in attendance also include Charles F. Chapman, of New York City, secretary of the racing commission of the American Power Boat Association, under whose authority the races are being held. Chapman also is serving as race committee chairman for the regatta.

Capital Man Defies Jinx to Get Married

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 13.—Friday, the 13th, has no terrors for Charles Emory Phillips, 26, assistant secretary of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., of Washington, D. C., even when it comes to getting married with that supposedly unlucky combination stacked against him. When he took out a license here today to marry Catherine Estelle Sieggler, 27, of Takoma Park, Md., he announced that he planned to have the knot tied just as soon as he could locate a minister, somewhat to the amazement of Tom Miller, license clerk, who admits he is superstitious and would never think of being married on such a day himself.

Phillips and his bride returned North by motor this evening after they had been married. He is originally from Woodside, Md., while the bride is a native of Philadelphia.

Man Stoops for Coin; Auto Imitates Goat

Newark, N. J., Sept. 13 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—Harry Winslow, of Arlington, laughed at his fellow workmen today when they talked about Friday, the 13th, being an unlucky day. On his way home he noticed a shiny bit of metal on the street in Harrison.

"Ha, ha," said Winslow. "That's luck, a quarter."

He stopped to pick up the shiny piece of metal and a flivver bumped him from the rear. Albert Fliwebes, of Montclair, driver of the flivver, picked up Winslow and took him to a hospital for treatment for cuts and bruises.

"Just a piece of tin," mumbled Winslow as the doctor patched him up.

"You mean my car?" asked Fliwebes.

"No, the coin I thought was a quarter," answered Winslow.

OIL TANK PROJECT IN ARLINGTON HIT

Capital Park Official Speaks Against Plan at Zoning Board Meeting.

PARKING RULING TARGET

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Speaking before the Arlington County Zoning Commission at its meeting last night in the county courthouse, on the granting of a permit for erection of oil tanks adjacent to the Lee Highway, Maj. E. M. Chisolm, jr., engineer to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, declared that he felt sure the commission will oppose the granting of a permit for industrial wharves or docks on the Potomac River in this vicinity as incongruous with park development proposed.

"I am informed that the oil company which seeks a permit contemplates purchasing a tract of land that extends from the Lee highway to the Potomac River and expects to barge oil up to the wharves to be constructed along the river. This will involve a use of Government property, as the United States has the title to the high water line on the Virginia shore at this point.

"The National Capital Park and Planning Commission believes that the Potomac River Valley has unique and distinctive scenic attractions and unusual recreational values in its natural conditions.

"You can see from charts which I am leaving here that the proposed commercial development will block the main park drive from the Arlington Memorial Bridge and the Key Bridge to Chain Bridge. The oil company's development is therefore manifestly inconsistent with and detrimental to important park projects, including a waterline connection more vital to the best development of the county than any commercial enterprise can be, particularly when the high residential values of nearby lands are considered.

"The proposed development along the Potomac River to Great Falls is now only a study and not a fixed plan, as no money is available to buy land, but if those owning the land will be willing to wait they will gain by not selling at this time, as with passage of the Crampton bill the work of the commission will be aided by the cooperation of the residents."

The application of the Sun Oil Co. of Philadelphia, will come before the zoning commission at its meeting next Friday night.

Commenting on the proposed highways along the Potomac River to Great Falls, Col. Charles T. Jesse, chief of counsel for the oil company, said: "No doubt the humor of the dream highway will appeal to the citizens of Arlington County who are requested to hold lands in idleness, paying taxes on them, while the District continues to reap the benefits of its waterfront on the opposite bank, devoted almost exclusively to commerce and industry."

Aroused over announcement by Sheriff Howard B. Fields that he has received instructions from County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, originating with Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, to enforce the parallel parking ordinance in Clarendon beginning today, the business interests along Wilson boulevard circulated a petition yesterday calling upon the County Board of Supervisors to review the action.

Sheriff Fields declared he will have officers on the job today, and any violations will result in offenders being cited to appear in police court. He added that he is not in favor of the change. The merchants say the ordinance will cause business losses.

A petition will be presented to the supervisors at its meeting today and will be supported by a large delegation of the business men of Clarendon, including representatives from the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce.

The County Board of Supervisors also will hear a delegation from the Clarendon Fire Department, anxious to know whether the board is going to do anything toward aiding them.

A report of the dismissal of Mrs. W. W. Willis, a deputy registrar of vital statistics in the county health department, by the county board of supervisors, was confirmed yesterday by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth.

Mrs. Willis, away from the office on account of illness, has been in the employ of the county for more than eight years. She also is secretary of the home service department of the Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross. This office she has held since 1919.

Pleading guilty to a charge of petty larceny, Bushrod Garrison, the one-armed watchman of the Virginia Auto Parts Co., on the Richmond-Washington highway, was fined $19.25, including costs, by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday.

Three men, Nathan G. Armel, Odie Ponthieux and W. R. Raker, held on charges having been nolle prossed by been alleged that they held up and tied Garrison, were released, the charges having been nolle-prossed by Commonwealth's Attorney William C Gloth due to lack of evidence.

A warrant was served yesterday on Robert S. Krezell on a charge of murder growing out of the death of William C. Robinson, of 124 North Pitt street, Alexandria, who, it is alleged, was thrown from an automobile operated by Krezell early Wednesday morning on the Washington-Richmond highway.

The case was continued by Judge Thomas until next Friday morning at 9:30 at the request of Krezell's counsel, Hugh Reid.

Funeral services for Clarence Hubbard Welch, sr., 73 years old, who died at his home in Clarendon Wednesday, will be conducted from the home today at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Strock, pastor of the Ballston Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Oakhill Cemetery.

He is survived by a son, Clarence Hubbard Welch, jr., of Kansas City, Mo., a niece, Miss Grace Campbell, of Clarendon, and four grandchildren. He had been a resident of Arlington County for over 20 years and for 30 years had been employed in the Water Department of the District of Columbia.

Alvin M. Brown, 26 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin H. Brown, of Leeway, died yesterday at his home.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock by the Rev. William B. Hodges. Burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church. Besides his wife, he is survived by his parents, one sister, Miss Maude Brown, and two brothers, Vernon and Vinnan Brown.

The ladies auxiliary of the Clarendon Fire Department will give a benefit card party tonight at the Lyon Park community house.

The morning service tomorrow at the Clarendon Methodist Church will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. George H. Fielding. His subject will be "The Choice of Moses." The evening service at 8 o'clock will be conducted by the Rev. E. V. Register, of Alexandria, presiding elder of the Alexandria district.

Lebanon Chapter, O.E.S., Plans Party.

A 500 card party will be given at the Northeast Masonic Temple, at Eighth and F streets, at 8:30 o'clock this evening by the Lebanon Chapter of the Eastern Star. All members of that order are invited.

CHINESE OUTRAGES CLAIMED BY SOVIET

Chinese authorities arrested all blond Russian young men and women and submitted them to cruel treatment because the policeman was reported to have been shot at by a blond youth.

Because her husband was imprisoned and all her property confiscated, Madam Rogachova, a Russian, poisoned herself last Tuesday. In several parts of the military zone, cases of insanity have been reported. Thousands of children were said to be in pitiable conditions because of the necessity of either remaining with their parents in prison and concentration camps or in open fields without shelter.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Sept. 14 (Saturday) (A.P.).—In a fresh note remarkable for its brevity and negative character, the Nanking government today virtually rejected all amendments recently proposed by the Soviet government for a projected mutual agreement to govern the control and operation of the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria.

Conditions Called Impossible.

Although the Nationalist government expresses its readiness to begin negotiations with Moscow immediately for settlement of the railway dispute, it proposed conditions which were declared in responsible governmental quarters to be impossible of acceptance.

Nanking proposed that the main points in the dispute between the two countries be settled at a future conference in Berlin, adding that if the conference decided in favor of the proposed Soviet amendments regarding the railway the Nationalist government would not object to them.

The Chinese note ignored completely the recent Soviet proposal to replace the present Chinese chairman of the board of directors of the railway, whom Moscow holds was largely responsible for the conflict, and said that China can not agree to appointment of a new manager and assistant manager for the railway as a preliminary to negotiations.

Soviet Accepts British Proposal for Parley

Moscow, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—The Russian government officially announced today it has accepted an invitation from the British Labor government to send a representative to London for a discussion of procedure in the negotiations for renewal of trade and commercial relations and diplomatic service between Russia and England.

Since it was on matters of procedure that the Anglo-Russian negotiations broke down early in August, the first discussions in London will be devoted to clearing up any difficulty of this kind. The invitation from the British government was transmitted to the Russian government by Norway.

NEWSPAPER RADIO STATIONS PLANNED

Washington Will Get Two of 26 Plants Requested in United Stations.

U. S. PERMISSION ASKED

If an application made yesterday by the Press Wireless, Inc., is granted by the Federal Radio Commission, 26 radio stations will be constructed and two of them, having 10,000 watts power each, will be erected in Washington. These stations, however, will broadcast on high frequency channels and will not be used for entertainment purposes, confining themselves to telegraphic code.

The Press Wireless, Inc., is a public utility corporation formed by newspapers to take over the 40 frequencies assigned to the press of the country. In several cities two stations will be erected to handle both transoceanic and continental communications. The oceanic waves have already been allocated to the corporation, but the continental channels are "held in reserve for the press" pending further action by the commission. The matter is involved in the short wave appeals that have been filed in the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

Two stations are to be placed in Chicago, Little Neck, N. Y.; New Orleans; San Francisco; Los Angeles, and Upper Newton Falls, Mass., in addition to Washington. One is to be constructed at each of the following cities: Cleveland, Detroit, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Dallas, Miami, Memphis, Kansas City, Mo., Minneapolis, Denver, Seattle and Salt Lake City.

Agreement to form the Press Wireless, Inc., was reached by a group of newspapers July 9 and the corporation was accepted by the commission. The corporation, organized under the Delaware laws, is capitalized at $1,000,000, this money to be raised by subscriptions from newspapers and press associations. Joseph Pierson, cable editor of the Chicago Tribune, is president.

RAILROAD LAUNCHES GIANT LAND PLANE

Largest of Type Ever Built Gets Thorough Trial at Fokker Field.

WING SPREAD IS 99 FEET

Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—The biggest land plane ever built, primarily designed for whisking sleeping passengers across the night skies at 150 miles an hour, was officially launched today.

It was the first of the Fokker F-32's equipped to carry 32 passengers in daylight flights and 16 at night and is destined for early installation on the transcontinental plane-train system of the New York Central Railroad and Universal Airlines.

Five more are under construction for Universal and as soon as they are finished six more will be begun for Western Air Express.

With 13 persons aboard, the giant plane, which has a wing spread of 99 feet and is nearly 70 feet long, took off today after a run along Fokker Field of less than 20 seconds. It climbed steeply, banked and swung in wide circles under low clouds. First the rear of the four engines were idled and then the front without loss of altitude.

The speed was pushed up to 150 miles an hour, lowered to less than 100, it dipped and swooped and banked to demonstrate its stability in all positions, and then it dropped gently back to the muddy field.

Passengers sit four abreast on both sides at a wide aisle. The cabin is so high that even tall passengers can not touch the ceiling when standing up. There is a kitchen and two washrooms.

New Chairman and Other G. O. P. Chiefs Hold Parley in Capitol.

With the retiring chairman, Dr. Hubert Work, and the party treasurer, J. R. Nutt, present the new chief assembled other party stalwarts in the office of Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, the recently chosen chairman of the senatorial campaign committee.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader of the Senate, participated in the session, at which plans were made for the biennial campaign in which 32 senators and the entire membership of the House will be involved.

Senator Moses later expressed satisfaction over the outlook. The presence of Dr. Work at the parley was pointed to by some party men as showing harmony between the old and new Hoover machines.

BALTIMORE SCHOOLS DISMISS FOR FIESTA

Huge Cake With 200 Candles Draws Eyes as City Has Birthday.

SECOND PARADE STAGED

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—A huge white birthday cake, topped by 200 candles, stood in the center of today's principal event in Baltimore's bicentennial celebration.

The event was the children's playfestival, staged in the Baltimore Stadium, but to the disappointment of the 3,000 children who took part and other thousands among the spectators the cake was not cut. It was the kind to be seen, not the edible variety.

As compensation, however, the children had a school holiday for the festival, which combined in the city's birthday celebration the observance of the one hundredth anniversary of establishing public schools here.

Meanwhile the older celebrators used their time in sight-seeing trips around the city and harbor, or visiting aboard the Navy ships here for the celebration. The Daughters of the American Revolution presented a tablet marking Strickers Battery at Fort Howard, just outside the city, in the afternoon.

The second of the parades of the four-day observance marched through downtown streets tonight, 24 fraternal organizations being represented among the marchers. An automobile parade that followed them through the business section continued after the marching delegations disbanded, giving streets in the northern and eastern parts of the city a portion of the celebration.

The climax of the whole program was to be the pageant of the city's history and progress tomorrow, followed by a street carnival tomorrow night, while the churches will take charge of the Sunday observances.

Cuban Sugar Fields Hard Hit by Storms

Havana, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Heavy storms throughout Cuba yesterday caused considerable damage to sugar cane fields, according to reports to the Associated Press today from interior towns.

Heaviest losses occurred at San Jose de los Ramos, where the entire district was swept by storms which destroyed vegetables and caused an 80 per cent loss in cane fields. Heavy winds were accompanied by terrific rains.

Sheriff Who Shot Boy Held for Grand Jury

Ashland, Ala., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Cecil Guthrie, Clay County deputy sheriff, who shot and killed Clarence Bailey, 16-year-old high school student, last Sunday, when he attempted to arrest the youth on a charge of violating the prohibition law, was bound over to the action of the grand jury following a preliminary hearing here today.

Guthrie was returned to jail in default of $5,000 bond set by Judge E. S. Garrison. The grand jury meets in three weeks.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

JOCKEY IS THROWN AT FAIRFAX RACES

Shoulder Broken in Mishap When Saddle Girth Is Snapped Apart.

KLANSMEN FAIR GUESTS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon 919-J-1.

The third day of Fairfax County Fair was celebrated as "grange day." About 4,000 persons attended.

During the consolation race the only accident of the day occurred when the saddle girth broke on the horse Monty Blue, owned by Chamberlain & Fetzer, throwing the jockey and breaking his shoulder. He was taken to the hospital by Capt. Haywood Durrer, of the county police.

The morning was spent in completing judging of exhibits. Signor Guillimette amused the crowd with performances of aerial acrobatics.

Today will be celebrated as "Ku Klux Klan day," half of the gate receipts going to the Klan treasury. There will be a program of athletic events, with prizes for each event. In the afternoon $100 in gold will be hidden in the grounds, and all persons attending the fair may join in the gold hunt. In the evening there will be a band concert by the Klan Band and a display of fireworks.

'Bad Luck' Day Fails to Keep Girl Aviator Out of Plane

She Laughs at Fate and Flies to New York From Annapolis; Timid and Superstitious, However, Sighs With Relief When Midnight Passes.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 13.—That sinister combination most feared by the superstitious—Friday, the thirteenth—had no terrors for Miss Betty Huyler, New York girl, who flew here alone Tuesday for a few days visit to Miss Dorothy Smith, at "Hillsmere," South River.

A true exponent of the modern age, Miss Huyler, this afternoon took the air for the return flight to New York, undaunted by the evil omens attributed to this date.

Miss Huyler's De Havilland moth, which she flew to "Hillsmere" from the Long Island Aviation Country Club at Hicksville, had been made ready for the take-off and she got into the air safely at 2 o'clock to begin her home flight. As the journey required but four hours, this gave her ample time to reach Long Island before nightfall.

Although the youthful and pretty aviatrix snapped her fingers at the ancient superstition of Friday, the thirteenth, being a day of especial ill luck, many others tread warily and exercised the utmost caution to avoid the dread mishaps attributed to the day.

Minor accidents are being blamed on the malicious fates, which today are supposed to exercise undisputed sway over the destinies of men, and the timid and superstitious did not breathe freely until midnight passed and no calamity had befallen them.

HIT-RUN MOTORIST CONVICTED BY JURY

R. Emmett Casey Receives Two-Year Sentence in Lynchburg Court.

NEW TRIAL IS SOUGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 13.—After considering its verdict for an hour and 45 minutes, the jury in the case against R. Emmett Casey, charged with a hit-and-run accident in connection with the death of Mrs. E. W. Crowder here the night of August 19, tonight returned a verdict of guilty and fixed his punishment at two years in the penitentiary.

Counsel for the defense, S. Duval Martin and Aubrey E. Strode, immediately moved for a new trial on these grounds:

That the verdict is contrary to the law and the evidence; that certain exceptions were excluded and others granted by the court and others revised and amended by the court; because of improper arguments of the assistant attorney for the prosecution, Edward Meeks, of Amherst County; because the court refused to direct a mistrial at that time, and because of a demonstration in the courtroom during this improper argument.

Arguments Are Set

Judge F. P. Christian, who presided, fixed Saturday, September 21, as the time for arguments on this motion.

The demonstration came during the argument late this afternoon by Mr. Meeks, who was associated with W. H. Jordan, assistant commonwealth's attorney in the prosecution, when Mr. Meeks said he was replying to an argument of Col. Strode, when reference was made to the large crowd which had attended the trial. Col. Strode objected, saying the argument was to indicate to the jury the trend of the sentiment of the court room spectators and he moved that a mistrial be declared. Judge Christian denied the motion and exception was noted.

Casey struck and killed Mrs. Crowder at Twelfth and Floyd streets with his automobile and ran away. He admitted this on the stand, but claimed he did not know what he was doing.

The plea of the defense was that he suffered from amnesia or acute mental confusion, which lasted for some minutes after he had fled from the scene of the alleged crime. Casey was released on bail in the sum of $5,000, his father, C. M. Casey, theatrical producer, being surety.

Two Surprises Sprung.

In rebuttal this morning the State furnished two surprises, one of which was testimony by Dr. J. H. Bell, superintendent of the State epileptic colony, and the other, testimony of Frank Crist, of this city. Dr. Bell disagreed with Dr. Tucker, who testified Thursday that Casey was not responsible for running away from the accident because of acute mental confusion, saying that he examined Casey Tuesday of this week and reported that he did not think him irresponsible.

Dr. Bell declined to testify, saying his information was of a privileged nature, but Judge Christian ruled that he should testify. Crist testified that Casey struck him with his car February 8, 1925, and did not stop to offer assistance, afterward offering to pay his bills and asking him not to say naything about the incident, "as he was driving his father's car and did not car to make a stir of it."

Mrs. J. H. Rawlings and Bernard P. Kyle, Lynchburg, physicians, did not think the shock made Casey irresponsible for running away from the accident.

MUCH OF VIRGINIA APPLE CROP SOLD

Large Percentage Disposed Of at Good Prices, Official Asserts.

SHIPPING IS LESS ACTIVE

Richmond, Va., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Virginia apple growers have already sold a large percentage of their crop at good prices, J. H. Meek, director of the division of markets of the State Department of Agriculture, announced today after an inquiry into sales, prices and crop conditions.

Sales are not quite so active as earlier in the season, Meek said, and the crop is reported damaged in some sections by drought.

Meek found that United States No. 1 apples, 2¼ inches up, have been sold for delivery at shipping points per barrel as follows:

Winesaps—$4.50 to $6; a number of sales at $5 to $6.

Pippins—Considerable variation, $5 to $7, mostly $6 to $6.50.

Stayman—$4.50 to $6, some lower and some higher.

York—$3.50 to $4.50, a number at $3.75 to $4.

Delicious—$7 to $8, mostly $7 to $7.50.

Grimes—$4 to $6.45, mostly $4.50 to $5.25.

Jonathan—$4.50 to $7, mostly $5.50 to $6.

Black Twig—Mostly $3.75.

Ben Davis—$4 to $5, mostly $4 to $4.50.

Gano—$4 to $4.75, mostly $4.25 to $4.50.

King David—$5.50 to $6.

Lowry—Around $6.

Meek quoted from the official Federal apple report as of September 1 that the crop is now estimated at 145,523,000 bushels. Virginia was classed by the Federal report as one of the States in which the crop will be above the average, the report declaring the Virginia apples were damaged by drought in a relatively small area and are sizing up better than usual.

Virginia Receives Forestry Revenue

Money Desired to Be Used to Aid Schools and Improve Roads.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Virginia will receive $9,238 from the Federal Government as her share of the $1,600,000 being distributed among the 30 States in which there are national forests. The State's share of the national forest receipts represents a Federal payment in lieu of taxes which the States would receive if the forests were in private ownership.

The Federal statutes provide that this money must be used by the States for schools and roads.

Virginia's share of the national forest receipts was the largest for any State east of the Mississippi River with the single exception of New Hampshire. By far the largest portions of the fund distributed goes to far Western States in which national forest areas are much larger.

Lad Is Hurt by Comrade Seeking to Fly Bicycle

Eight-Year-Old Aviation Enthusiasts Come to Grief in Attempt to Convert Wheel Into Plane When Pilot Crashes Into Lone Spectator.

Aviation has proven such an attraction to 8-year-old Carlos Floyd, of Great Falls, Va., that the lad yesterday afternoon tried to convert his bicycle into an airplane, causing serious injury to William Holland, of Conduit road, another 8-year-old boy.

Floyd, it was learned, had attached a miniature airplane propellor to his wheel in the hope that this would induce his machine to rise from the Potomac (Va.) School playground. The lad had set the time for his great experiment late yesterday afternoon. He had extended the privilege to his friend, Holland, to be a single witness to his endeavor.

Floyd mounted the bicycle while Holland stood in the center of the playground. Floyd peddled. With increasing speed the bicycle tore around the small plot of ground. But it failed to leave the ground. Floyd got dizzy. So did Holland. Within a few minutes both youngsters were lost in a maze of giddiness. Eventually, cyclist and audience made contact. A hard one.

Holland is in Georgetown University Hospital with three stitches in his forehead. Floyd is sadly disillusioned over the prospects of converting a bicycle into an airplane.

Winchester to Enjoy Sunday Cavalry Drill

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 13.—The Winchester Ministerial Association has announced no protest against the appearance here next Sunday afternoon of a squad of Troop E, Third United States Cavalry, of Fort Myer, Va., which is advertised to give a "program of difficult stunts similar to the exhibition which thrilled so many people during the recent Winchester fair."

The cavalrymen are to give their drill early in the afternoon, followed by a baseball game at Rouss Park with a Winchester team, at which no admission will be charged.

Car, Rum Seized at Lynchburg.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 13 (Special).—A coupe and twelve gallons of liquor were seized late Wednesday at 1005 Florida avenue and the police believe the car has an out-of-State ownership. The license plates were off the car. An effort is being made to trace the ownership.

Chatham to Hear Both Sides in Political Race

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville Va., Sept. 13.—Pittsylvania farmers will hear both sides of the gubernatorial question at Chatham Monday. Dr. John Garland Pollard yesterday announced he would speak there at the opening of the quarterly court session and that he would discuss the State issues.

Today W. Kirk Mathews, of Richmond, was announced as speaking at Chatham also Monday in behalf of William Mosely Brown.

Schools to Go on Half Days.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Sept. 13 (Special).—Every day will be a half holiday this semester for students of the Parkersburg High School. Because of the construction of an addition, the State fire marshal has decided it unsafe for the 1,500 or more pupils to occupy the building at one time, so it has been arranged to let half the students go to school in the morning and the remainder in the afternoon.

CAMP SMITH, Peekskill, N.Y. Aug. 17th.—I have shared the soldier's cigarette in pretty nearly every corner of the world, and I know how set in his ways an army man can get when it comes to knowing what smoke he likes. So frankly the idea that a two year old cigarette—even if it did have the name OLD GOLD—could win this test over three old time brands seemed unbelievable.

But the thing worked out. At Camp Smith, where I witnessed the test, OLD GOLD put the bee on 506 Yanks of the Old Seventh New York regiment.

The Old Seventh went OLD GOLD with 195 bull's-eyes as against 144 for the next brand, with the two other old timers rating scores of 81 and 86.

What's more, this concealed name test is as square as a regimental parade ground.

AMERICA'S ONE DEMAND.

The announcement is made that the United States and Great Britain are now prepared to enter a naval limitation conference to which Japan, France and Italy will be invited. Prime Minister MacDonald will come to Washington early next month, presumably to reach an understanding with President Hoover on the still unsettled question of cruiser parity.

The fact that the United States and Great Britain are ready to go into a conference, and the further fact that Mr. MacDonald is taking a great risk for the sake of adjusting remaining differences, are gratifying evidence that at least two governments are doing their best to solve this most difficult of all problems.

It has been frequently stated that the governments of Japan, France and Italy have been kept fully informed regarding the conversations between the American and British governments. Doubtless the three governments mentioned have been sounded out on the question of holding another conference, and are willing to participate. As Mr. MacDonald said last month, "no agreement between us two can carry us very far unless the other powers agree, and that is the condition of all our work."

Although public interest in America has been concentrated upon the subject of equalizing the naval strength of Great Britain and the United States, it ought to be evident that an agreement between them is dependent upon the cooperation of the other powers, particularly France and Italy. A shift of the British fleet from the Mediterranean to the North Sea might entirely upset any rule of relativity between the French and British navies. France and Italy must reach an agreement, also, before Great Britain can bind itself to any agreement with the United States, for Mediterranean conditions must be stabilized before the British fleet can be safely limited.

In the absence of public information concerning the propositions upon which the Washington and London negotiators seem to have reached an accord, it is premature to assume that the projected conference will either succeed or fail. Americans have confidence in President Hoover's assurance that he is safeguarding the national defense in all his negotiations, but they reserve the right to pass judgment upon any treaty that may emanate from an international conference. They are determined, in particular, to insist upon the absolute and not contingent or hypothetical equality of the British and American navies. Unless the hoped-for treaty for limitation of naval armaments provides for this actual equality it can not be expected to receive the approval of the Senate.

The reason for this fixed determination on the part of the American people is very clear. They have been repeatedly disappointed by the course of negotiations in Europe, and they are anxious to avoid a situation such as that which developed during the late war, when aggressions upon America's neutral and innocent commerce drove this country into war. Since the United States has renounced war and intends to observe the Kellogg treaty to the letter, it will not become involved when foreign countries are at war unless they commit acts of aggression against the American flag on the seas. Americans believe that an American Navy as strong as any foreign navy would discourage aggression and therefore keep the United States out of war. On condition that absolute British-American naval parity is to be obtained and maintained, Americans seem to be willing to meet the British government and all other governments more than half way in reducing naval armaments. All that is needed in order to prevent the building of American cruisers is the scrapping of the excessive tonnage of British cruisers. In that direction lies actual reduction of fleets and relief for the taxpayers of both countries. If Great Britain is unwilling to scrap down to the American level, let it agree to suspend all building while the United States builds up to the British level. A clear-cut agreement to that effect would probably be acceptable to the Senate. But if the British fleet is to be an elastic proposition, dependent upon uncertain conditions in the Mediterranean and elsewhere, it is idle to expect that the Senate will approve a treaty proposing such an arrangement.

The one cardinal principle upon which Americans have fixed their will is that the United States Navy shall, as soon as possible, be made the equal of the strongest foreign navy, and be maintained thereafter under all conditions as strong as any other navy in the world.

ELEVEN YEARS AGO TODAY.

For four long years the St. Mihiel salient loomed in the western battle front like a raised dagger in the hand of a powerful enemy, with the point touching the heart of France. The hills on the Meuse only a few miles away frowned with guns trained on Verdun. Back of these hills were three enemy defense lines, and bank after bank of formidable artillery.

On September 12, 1918, the group of armies under Pershing struck St. Mihiel. Eleven years ago today the shadow of death no longer rested on Verdun. The enemy was driven back to his defense line.

Pershing had 430,000 Americans and 70,000 Frenchmen. His 3,000 cannon made old Mont Sec—the enemy observation point—look like a mountain of fire. His 900 planes rained confusion in the ranks of the enemy, and with 400 tanks he made highways through fields of barbed wire. Pershing captured over 15,000 enemy prisoners and 440 cannon.

St. Mihiel was the last of the enemy salients. Mangin had struck at Soissons and the armies under Fayolle and Maistre had wiped out the Chateau-Thierry salient. Rawlinson and Debeney had used over 400 tanks in smashing the Hindenburg line near St. Quentin. Plumer and Birdwood had driven back the enemy salient at Merville. All along the western front—from Switzerland to the North Sea—the enemy was back on his main defense line, with his once powerful armies dazed and demoralized. Thus, eleven years ago today, the stage was set for the greatest battle in history. On September 26 over 200 allied divisions and 22,000 cannon began the gigantic operation that ended the World War.

DOING AWAY WITH VISA FEES.

Perhaps the day will come when every country which demands from a visiting foreigner that he exhibit his passport will permit consular representatives to visa such documents without charge. That condition of international comity existed prior to the war. But, as a means of increasing its revenues, the United States not only increased the passport fee to ten times the former figure but demanded a fee for the indorsement by its consuls of all passports issued by other governments to their nationals who contemplated travel in the United States. Naturally the foreign governments were quick to respond to the suggestion for increasing their revenues and as a result an American who started on a journey to several countries of Europe found that the expense of the trip would be greatly increased because of the cost of consular visas.

The usual charge for each visa was $10 and in one instance, at least, the representative of a business house discovered that the cost of his passport and consular visas exceeded the cost of his first-class passage from New York to Plymouth.

In 1925 Congress authorized the State Department to enter into agreements with foreign countries for abolition or reduction of visa fees for all travelers except immigrants. Up to the present time such agreements have been perfected between this country and five others which have brought about the waiver of visa fees entirely, and with two others for a reduction in the amount exacted. Those which have agreed to abolish consular charges entirely are Italy, Germany, Holland, Switzerland and Belgium. Norway has agreed that after the end of 1929 her consuls will make no charge for the indorsement of an American passport, while France has recently reduced the charge from $10 to $2, and Poland from $10 to $4. England thus far has failed to agree to any reciprocal arrangement. However, negotiations are still in progress, which it is hoped will bring the British into line. The remaining European countries still holding out will, in all likelihood, do away with visa fees for the sake of attracting more American tourists.

No passport is required from Americans who visit Canada, Bermuda or Cuba.

OYSTERS IN ALL COLORS.

The fact that certain oysters are wearing outer coats, or skins, of a delicate pink hue has attracted the attention of scientists, who, after exhaustive analyses, announce that the change in bivalvular complexion is due to an oversupply of bilirubin in the livers of mollusks. The public is assured that the new color scheme does not affect the palatibility or nutritional virtue of the oyster.

This assurance, coming as it does from the most eminent biologists, offers an opportunity for those artists who are constantly on the qui vive for a new dish to tempt the appetite of the surfeited gourmet. Pink clams are no novelty. Pink oysters certainly promise a variation in fare from the pale, dejected specimens from fresh water beds which serve as delicacies in rural orgies far from the billows of the Atlantic. But it need not be necessary to limit the tinting to pale rose or pink. If bilirubin produces a faint rosy tinge when incorporated into an oyster's liver why not employ a mild solution of some innocuous substance that will give the bivalve a cerulean hue resembling the hydrangea that is changed to blue by a liberal diet of iron filings?

Every one knows by taste alone that the native English oyster feeds himself on copper. If one of those diminutive oysters should be swallowed by an American at Hastings or Southampton, with his eyes shut, he would be justified in suspecting that he had gulped down a bronze objet d'art. If English oysters eat copper and their American cousins have already learned to dose themselves with bilirubin why not other minerals to produce a rich variety of colors?

What a pity that the discovery of the tinted Venus of the oyster world was not made during the lifetime of the late Prof. Harvey, who could have served his world-famed "peck of steamed" in all the colors of the rainbow!

ALL-METAL AIRSHIPS.

The flight of the ZMC-2, first all-metal dirigible, from Detroit to Lakehurst, seems to give final proof of the practicability of its radical design and construction. For several weeks the ship has been undergoing tests by its makers at Detroit. There remain to be completed the official tests before it is accepted by the Navy. The long flight, however, which was completed with dispatch and ease, indicates that the all-metal airship is no more impracticable than the all-metal steamship. The public is justified in looking upon the ZMC-2 as the forerunner of a fleet of all-metal ships.

The "tin bubble," as the ZMC-2 has been dubbed, left Detroit Wednesday evening and arrived at Lakehurst Thursday morning. The voyage was made in the face of 30-mile-an-hour headwinds, in spite of which an average speed of approximately 40 miles an hour was maintained. The ship came through undamaged except for two small punctures, caused, it is believed, by uneven contraction of the metal skin. The mishap gave evidence of the great advantage that accrues to American lighter-than-air ships through the use of helium gas. Had the ZMC-2 been inflated with hydrogen the flight from Detroit might have ended in disaster, for hydrogen is highly inflammable and probably would have become ignited as it escaped through the two skin punctures. The possession of a large store of helium with which to inflate airships gives the United States an advantage over other nations. With this advantage, and with proof of the practicability of all-metal construction as demonstrated by the ZMC-2, it is reasonable to look for still more rapid development of airships.

The Department of Agriculture reports that the 1930 strawberry outlook is good; but right now the public is more interested in the pumpkin outlook.

Children visiting beaches are inclined to wonder where enough spinach is obtained from which to shake out so much sand.

What will Dr. Doran have to say if District officials raise the water rate?

MEXICO'S LABOR LAW

Wall Street Journal.

If the proposed labor code in Mexico is adopted the burdens upon capital, already heavy, will be greatly increased; the crisis now existing there will be intensified. The proposed law, therefore, is of great importance to American capital invested there, variously estimated at from $1,250,000,000 to $1,500,000,000, as well as to Canadian and other foreign capital in Mexico.

The proposed law is not drawn with any reference to economic facts but from the standpoint of socialism in the most advanced form, and even of something worse. It seeks to regulate the employer's business and management for him through numberless boards and commissions, federal, state and municipal, so that his hands are virtually tied. He can not even employ whom he wishes, nor discharge an unsatisfactory or unnecessary worker.

Employers are compelled to build or provide the workers with "comfortable and hygienic dwellings," for which they can not charge more than ½ per cent a month of the taxation value. As the law is worded an unmarried man as well as those with families must have a dwelling provided for him. Renting a dwelling at 6 per cent of even cost value would be a losing proposition. Then, too, the capital outlay would be a great burden. In 1928 there were 46,900 men on the payroll of the National Railways. To build as many houses at even $1,000 each would stagger that company.

Dismissal of a worker (or slacker) means three months' wages. Employers are compelled to employ 5 per cent of apprentices. This means for every twenty men on the railroads there must be an apprentice; one for every twenty brakemen and one for every twenty engineers. There must be one apprentice for every twenty workmen in the mines, shops and factories. The question of necessity does not enter into consideration. The Mexican government has been making great claims of its accomplishment in establishing schools, the evidence of which has never been seen. It is shifting the work to the shoulders of capital. Every employer of 100 workers must erect and maintain a school.

Hours and working shifts are regulated in such way that continuous work is impossible. It might be interesting for these socialistic lawmakers to explain how railroads, mining, light and power and some other industries can do otherwise than operate 24 hours a day. Regulating the hours and imposing heavy fines on the operators for disobeying them will not make the necessity any less real.

These are only a few of the absurdities of the proposed law—no more than a drop in the bucket. But they serve to show how little the Mexicans know of economic law or of business. They show the same ignorance of business and hostility to capital that Soviet Russia gave the world. Instead of trying now to make the country safe for capital, after its unhappy experience, Mexico is trying to make it still more unsafe.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE CURSE OF ONE GOOD ROUND.

He wants to shoot a seventy-nine,
I wish him luck, but oh,
'Twere better he should stay with me
Round ninety-two or so.
'Twere better far to miss a par
And smile when a shot is straight,
Than to live to sigh as time goes by
And curse at an eighty-eight.

He wants to shoot a seventy-nine,
But sad of heart I'll be
The day I view his dream come true
For he'll be done with me.
One happy day would steal away
The pleasure of the game,
For the splendor fine of an eighty-nine
Would never seem the same.

Oh, once I shot a seventy-nine,
And once my heart was glad,
But I've had no fun, since that was done,
Now all my shots seem bad.
And the ninety-two I often do
I bitterly repine,
For I hold the thought that I surely ought
To make a seventy-nine.

Oh friend, be glad with the game you have
Be happy with your fate,
Let naught destroy the pride and joy
Of a snappy eighty-eight.
Don't try too hard for a seventy card,
For if ever one comes to you,
Until life is done you will get no fun
From your usual ninety-two.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

I have just finished reading part of the testimony in a sordid murder case. A young married woman, untrue to her husband, was found dead in another man's automobile.

The murdered woman's stepfather, testifying in regard to her character, said in part: "We spoiled Mamie, always letting her have her own way and have all the company she wanted. There was always a crowd of young folks around, and they were constantly on the go."

That was Mamie's background and explained the things that followed. She married a quiet, prosperous man who was good to her but wouldn't take her to gay parties. She couldn't resign herself to a quiet life, and began to go out with young people who "showed her a good time." The last "good time" ended in a murder mystery.

I don't mean to intimate that all young women who enjoy a gay life end by being untrue to their husbands and getting killed, but I want to call your attention to the fact that "being constantly on the go," as Mamie was, becomes a habit that leads almost inevitably to shipwreck or the unhappy conviction that life is a wretched bore.

This summer you have enjoyed unusual liberty. For the first time you have been permitted to have your friends here at the house as often as you wished and to attend parties and frolics almost without restraint or hindrance.

If the result is bad, the fault is mine, for I have been experimenting with you—giving you rope to see how far you would go.

You haven't done anything wrong. Last week I heard you say you were having the best time of your life and were grateful for it.

But the effect on you has been bad. You can't be still. Home is a bore if none of your friends are here. You are unhappy unless you are going somewhere. You have lost the ability to entertain yourself and must depend on others for the whole of your happiness.

That's bad—very bad. And it's my fault. But I'll undo the mischief before this fault in your character has time to jell.

This jazz-frolic habit is like the drinking of cocktails. Once you learn to depend on it for your happiness, you must keep going a little farther and a little farther to get the kick. And you've gone far enough. Now we'll learn to enjoy home again.

Love,
DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PET PEEVES OF MANKIND.

Psychologists are always busy. If it isn't one thing it's another. Now Prof. Hulsey Cason, of the University of Rochester, announces the results of extensive researches into the "pet peeves" of mankind. He has compiled a list of 21,000 "things that annoy people most."

* * * *

Some of the chief annoyances, with the number of victims so voting, follow:

To see or hear an animal cruelly treated	28
A dirty bed	28
To hear a mosquito when trying to sleep	26
Hair in food	25
Officious salesmen	24
Cockroaches	24
A person crowding in front of me instead of waiting in line	23
Persons talking during a motion picture show	18
Persons looking over shoulder at book or paper	14
Musicians making unnecessary motions while performing	17
Poor singing	17

* * * *

The professor's list needs amplification. This department took a what-peeves-me-most vote yesterday, with ideal weather conditions prevailing. The results:

Seeing red light flash at cross-street	5,678
Finding a sign, "Road closed. Detour," when you have motored five miles on a presumably short cut	4,587
Thumbs in soup	4,276
Partner trumping trick in bridge	3,925
Getting up on cold morning and finding furnace out	3,876
Finding feather in chicken pie	3,875
Income-tax blank	2,999
Having golf ball picked up by man ahead	2,876
Jokes by radio announcers	2,564
Weather descriptions by radio announcers supposed to be reporting football games	2,436
Getting Rudy Vallee on the radio just after throwing a plate at wife	1,863
Theater seats behind a post	1,472
To get a phone call at 3 a. m., walk downstairs and have Central ask, "Numbah, pleaze?"	807
To hire a beautiful stenographer and have the boss take her and give you his old one	705
Baby squawling when you're trying to get stock returns over radio	645
Dull razor blades	607
Toothbrush shedding bristles in mouth	601
Hearing a neighbor's lawnmower at 7 a. m.	598
Listening to a pest describe his golf game, hole by hole	458
Sand in spinach	376
After-dinner speeches (serious)	356
After-dinner speeches (humorous)	356
Squeaky shoes	345
Stenographer humming, "You belong to me"	312
Chewing-gum on chair leg	298
Musical automobile horns	267
Slat falling out of bed while reading mystery story	167
Having headlights turned into your car while parking	132
Losing heel while dancing	108

IDEA FOR A MYSTERY STORY.

"EDDIE—Were you on the Northland June 29? Looked too young; am so near-sighted; beg you communicate; see Brooklyn telephone book; care deeply. Sister Julia."—New York Times.

SEPTEMBER, 1929.

A haze on the far horizon,
The infinite tender sky.
The ripe rich tint of the golf course
And the fairways hard and dry;
And all over upland and lowland
The moanings of golfers all
Who find every green so hardened
There's nothing to hold the ball!

A GOLF MYSTERY.

Well, Jimmy Johnston, the new amateur golf champion, hasn't yet revealed whether he owes it all to underwear, motor oil or cigarettes.

At least nine big advertising agencies were upset by the defeat of Dr. Willing. They were all set to have him indorse a tooth-paste.

COMMUTER SERIES.

Is on his mind from dawn to dawn;
Who sprays it, then departs for town
And then speeds back to wet it down.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Midnight Radio Outrages Call for Another Prohibition Amendment and Volstead Act Suppressing the Nuisance, Says Mr. Murphy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Other cities are awakening to the necessity for reform in the matter of broadcasting over loud speakers late at night in crowded communities. If the tribe of J. Woodrow Eliot is allowed to continue its assaults on the health and morals of a community there will be an uprising elsewhere which will eventually sweep down upon Congress and compel our lawmakers to afford us the relief which we demand.

It should not be forgotten that an aroused public sentiment finally forced Congress to shut down upon the liquor interests, through the enactment of the Volstead law following the ratification of the eighteenth amendment. There is far more reason why Congress should submit to the people for ratification another amendment to our fundamental law prohibiting, under penalty of $20,000 fine and twenty years in the penitentiary, the use of a loud speaker inside an open window by the owner of a radio, after sundown.

That the country is awakening to the necessity for some such action is shown in a letter to the editor of the New York World in which the writer says:

"Like many others, I am robbed of quiet and sleep by radio fiends. It is time that our city authorities woke up. No one whose nerves are set on edge for hours at a time and who is subjected to a sort of third degree by being kept awake nearly all night every night, can do his work properly the next day. As the law now stands we are practically helpless to seek relief in the police courts, for our time is not always our own.

"This nuisance should be put down by law, and when I say 'put down' I mean put down, not winked at."

FRANCIS J. MURPHY.

Strange Aggressions by St. Marys County Rabbits Call for Biological Inquiry.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On a recent trip into St. Marys County I was astonished and alarmed by the attitude of several rabbits that I encountered on the highway. Ordinarily all species of rabbits dart away at the approach of man, but these animals appeared disposed to resent our intrusion. We stopped our car, and at once two of the creatures sprang toward us and attacked one of our tires as though determined to rip it from the rim. We had no firearms in the auto, and made our retreat toward Washington. The animals followed us for an eighth of a mile, when, to the further astonishment of our party, no fewer than a dozen other rabbits appeared and joined in the chase.

They did not make much headway. They proceeded with a peculiar staggering gait, as though their muscular systems were deranged. Throughout this stretch of highway a sour and pungent odor was very noticeable. Once, years ago, the writer lived in Erie, Pa. A lake steamer in a leaky condition was brought into port with its cargo of grain soaked and sour. The St. Marys odor resembled the smell pervading Erie harbor on that occasion. I wonder if there was some connection between this odor and the strange behavior of the rabbits. The problem is one for biologists.

INTERESTING DOCUMENTS.

Interest in the report that for the second time within a few weeks a trunk of documents, including papers relating to the Washington family, has been found will be tempered by wonder that their existence should so long have remained unknown, says the New York Times.

In each instance the letters and papers were found among the belongings of collateral descendants of Gen. Washington. That the owners should so long have lacked curiosity to search among the family belongings for all possible Washingtoniana is perhaps explainable by the fact that a family tradition may have existed that all papers relating to their illustrious great-uncle had long ago been turned over to some historical association.

It is even more surprising that none of the many historians who have written biographies of Washington should have found these papers. The obvious course followed even by the older school of biographers was to obtain all possible documents and diaries that might be in the possession of the family of Washington, or that might be owned by descendants of his friends and associates. More detailed information about the precise contents of the trunk will be awaited with lively curiosity.

JOCKEY HOLLOW.

Jockey Hollow, on the outskirts of Morristown, deserves to be perpetuated as a memorial to American patriotism during the war of independence, says the New York Times. To call it the New Jersey Valley Forge is hardly to exaggerate, for during the winter of 1779-80 two thousand officers and men in camp to protect northern New Jersey endured great privations. One hundred and fifty of them died. They were buried in a grove of locusts on the banks of Primrose Brook, and to this day their graves are unmarked.

During that bitter winter the men of the camp were being fitted out for another trial of strength with the British. Makers of ammunition, wagoners, blacksmiths and carpenters had no idle hours. Members of the Continental Congress came to Morristown to view the troops in Jockey Hollow. Gen. Washington and his wife were living in the house now owned by the Washington Association and preserved as a museum in the west of the town. Its treasures remind one of the domestic life at Mount Vernon.

As to making a companion picture of Jockey Hollow, it is said that it only remains to determine the agency for preserving it and teaching its lesson of patriotism.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Official Boat At Regatta Is Gay Picture

Those on Board See Few of Races But Have Good Time.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THEY couldn't see much of the boat races, the group of dignitaries who were guests of the committee for the President's Cup regatta on the Mendota yesterday, but they seemed to be having an awfully good time aboard.

The Navy Band played through the afternoon. There was dancing on deck. At least Mr. William Bowie Clarke persisted in dancing with one pretty maid after another. Iced lemonade, with sandwiches and cookies, was served. The ship was "manned" with a crew of pretty girls, helping to dispense hospitality, and officers of the Coast Guard, brave in their white uniforms, graciously filled the role of hosts.

The guests pretty well ran the gamut of official society, excepting the President and Mrs. Hoover, who are to witness the finals of the regatta today from the trim Coast Guard craft Apache, aboard which they will entertain a small group of guests. Rear Admiral C. F. Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard, and Mrs. Billard, who received aboard the Mendota yesterday, will be hosts today on the Apache and tea will be served for the presidential party and their guests.

Beautiful Panorama Presented by River.

Here's hoping the Apache will be more conveniently moored than was the Mendota and that the "official boat," the pride of the Coast Guard, will be a bit nearer the finish line today. From her decks yesterday afternoon there was a charming panorama of the gay river scene, hundreds of small craft, flag decked, darting speedboats, an Army blimp floating lazily overhead, airplanes frolicking roundabout and the blue river dancing beneath the bluer sky. But it wasn't possible to see much of the racing, unless one put off in a tender which seemed to be making occasional sightseeing trips to the course.

Small boats put out at ten-minute intervals from the War College wharf for the Mendota, and from each dozens of distinguished guests swarmed over the side. Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, was there to greet them, receiving with Admiral and Mrs. Billard, Mrs. T. H. Crapster, Mrs. Chester Jones and Mrs. Bradbury.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Good were early arrivals, bringing their young son with them and accompanied by Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. J. H. Large. Later in the afternoon the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, was piped over the side. He had been cruising about in a smart Navy launch, an admiral's four stars on its stern, and apparently had Rear Admiral Arthur L. Willard, commandant of the navy yard, with him.

Diplomats View Races Together.

The Ambassador of Turkey, Ahmed Mouhtar Bey, and the Persian Minister, Mirza Davoud Khan Meftah, viewed the races together and in another diplomatic group one spied the minister of Austria and Mme Prochnik with the Minister of Finland, Mr. Astrom. The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Seymour Lowman were in the company, with their daughter, and so were Commissioner and Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro.

Warm autumn browns and bright yellows, either separately or in combination, seem to be the favorite tones for the early fall, to judge from the gowns of the women who were gathered in animated groups yesterday, exchanging remniscences of summer adventures. Mme. Prochnik wore a printed frock in which the prevailing color was deep yellow. Mrs. Taliaferro had on an all-yellow costume—crepe frock and wool coat with a bit of bright embroidery on its facings. Miss Dorothea Lane sponsored a suit of thin checked wool in brown and yellow with a severe straight yellow sailor hat; and Miss Marjorie Mondell wore a crepe costume of beige and brown with a becoming beige hat.

An orchid homespun suit, with collar of gray astrakhan, worn by Mrs. Harold Smoot, struck another authentic note of autumn chic and was worn with a tailored orchid crepe blouse, felt hat to match and gray shoes and hose. Some dressed to suit the cool breeze and some the warm sunshine, so one could run the gamut from sleeveless frocks to furred autumn coats.

Others glimpsed in a large and ever-shifting group were Mrs. Harry Lee Rust, Mrs. Blair Banister, Miss Margaret Banister, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Tuckerman, with Miss Laura Tuckerman, Mme. Ekengren, Miss Elsie Ekengren, Mrs. Davis Wills, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Underwood, Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, Miss Elizabeth Dunlop, Miss Mary Caroline Henry, Mrs. Ralph Worthington, Mrs. Morris Evans, Miss Meta Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Colfax Long, Miss Margaret Pilson, Miss Hannah Williams Locke, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Gann, Mr. Archie Wells, Mr. Richard Flournoy, Dr. and Mrs. J. Ryan Devereux, Mr. John Baldwin Cochran and Mr. William Jeffreys Chewning.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brisbane, who were guests of President Hoover at the White House over night, returned yesterday to New York.

The Belgian Ambassador and Princess de Ligne will motor to town this morning from Gibson Island to attend the marriage of M. Edouard de Streel, second secretary of the embassy, and Miss Helena Lodge, which will be solemnized this afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. George Cabot Lodge.

M. de Streel's father, M. Paul de Streel, and M. Etienne de Streel, a brother of the bridegroom, are staying at the Carlton Hotel, having come from Belgium for the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lodge, of Boston, are also registered at the Carlton.

Mme. de Martinez Guest At Nicaraguan Legation.

Mme. de Martinez, of Nicaragua, a counsin of the Minister of Nicaragua, Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, with her daughter, Emelina, and her son, Juan, is a guest at the legation for some time.

Dr. Sacasa has received word of the death of teh sister of Senora de Sacasa, Senora Graziela Arguello de Targa, a few days ago in Managua, Nicaragua. Senora de Sacasa is still in Europe, where she has been passing several months traveling with her daughter, Senorita Maria Sacasa, and will return to Washington the latter part of September. Senorita Sacasa has just finished her education at schools in London and Paris and will make her debut this winter in the Capital.

The Minister from Panama, Dr. Richardo J. Alfaro, was among those lunching on the Willard roof yesterday.

Mrs. Charles F. Hughes, wife of the chief of naval operations, entertained at luncheon yesterday in her home at the Naval Observatory in honor of Miss Turner, of California.

The Assistant Secreatry of Commerce and Mrs. Julius Klein were joined yesterday afternoon by the latter's brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Clement Bates, who are staying over for the week-end on their way to their home in Cambridge, Mass., after completing a motor trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Klein have but recently returned from Maine, where they passed the summer at Blake's Camp on Cape Rosier, about 40 miles from Bar Horbor.

Brig. Gen. Moseley Arrives in Capital.

Brig. Gen. Van Horn Moseley has arrived in Washington to assume his duties as military aid to Mr. Patrick Hurley, Assistant Secretary of War. Gen. Moseley has just finished a tour of duty at Fort Bliss, Tex., where he was commander of the first cavalry division.

The engagement of Gen. Moseley to Mrs. Florence Dubois, of Pinehurst, N. C., and Englewood, N. J., was announced a few months ago from Honolulu, where Gen. Moseley and his fiancee were visiting. Mrs. Dubois is a daughter of Mrs. James Barber, of Englewood. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Mrs. Belmont To Cross Sea For Speeches

National Woman's Party Patron Will Talk Over Radio.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, good angel of the National Woman's Party, will make a trip across the ocean just to speak over the radio—almost in the class with the barber who crossed the Atlantic to cut a bald man's hair. However, it is a very special talk which Mrs. Belmont is to make, for it will inaugurate a series of programs to be given over a Nation-wide hookup to tell the world about the activities of the Woman's Party.

She will speak early in October and will open a series of talks to be given weekly as long as the material holds out. After Mrs. Belmont will come Senator Gerald Nye, of North Dakota, who will speak on the equal rights amendment—the main purpose and pursuit of the Woman's Party.

Other speakers will include Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, who will tell about "Women's Place in Rural Life;" C. Bascom Slemp, whose topic will be "Opportunities for Women in Government;" Raymond Clapper, of the United Press, who will sketch "The Growing Importance of Women in the News," and Mrs. Harvey Wiley, who will speak on "Women as Home Makers."

Mrs. Belmont has been living in France for several years. There has long been current a report that she was no longer financing the group of militant women for whom she established headquarters in the Old Brick Capitol several years ago. But probably the Woman's Party no longer needs financing, having sold its quarters very advantageously to make way for the new Supreme Court Building. The group is now busy moving into its new house, purchased a few months ago from Senator and Mrs. Porter Dale.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Mondell will leave tomorrow on a ten days' trip to Montreal. They will be accompanied by their son, Mr. George Mondell, as far as Hanover, N. H., where he will attend Dartmouth College, and from there they will continue north to Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander W. Gregg, their son-in-law and daughter, sailed Wednesday on the Aquitania for Europe, where they will pass six weeks, spending most of the time in Paris and Nice.

Mrs. Truxtun Beale has returned from Europe and has joined Mr. Beale at their country home on South River, near Annapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson, whose home on the Rockville road, is leased to the Secretary of War and Mrs. Good, have taken for the season the residence at 1331 Eighteenth street. Mrs. Davidson has just returned from Europe. Mr. Davidson accompanied her, but business brought him back a month earlier.

Representative Ernest R. Ackerman has returned to his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel from his home in New Jersey.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritte W. Ireland and Col. and Mrs. Clement C. Whitcomb are motoring today with Maj. and Mrs. Samuel S. Creighton to Solomons Island, down on the Potomac, to remain over the week-end.

Mrs. Stanton J. Peelle and her daughter, Miss Betty Byrne, have taken an apartment on Park avenue in New York for the winter. Miss Byrne has recently returned from New Mexico, where she passed the summer with Miss Gladys Chapman Smith on a ranch near Silver City.

Miss Byrne, who has had several parts in moving pictures and plays on the legitimate stage, appeared for a moment in the picture, "Hard to Get," shown at the Earle this week.

Miss Virginia Peters will return next week from Herkimer, N. Y., where she has been the guest of Miss Helen Robinson, daughter of former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson. Miss Peters will be accompanied to Washington by Miss Robinson, who will visit Miss Peters' uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, at Silver Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ash will spend the week-end in Atlantic City returning to Washington on Monday.

Mrs. Charles Denby will sail tomorrow on the Deutchland for Germany to spend two months with her younger son, Mr. Edwin Denby, in Darmstadt, where he is a student in the Government Theater.

Mrs. James R. Mann has returned from Lenox in the Berkshires, where she spent the summer.

Miss Learned attended Miss Porter's School. Mr. Brayton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. S. Brayton, of Fall River and Touisett, Mass. He prepared at Phillips' Academy, Andover, and graduated with the class of 1928 at Harvard. He is a member of the D. U. Club and the Harvard Club of New York City.

Miss Learned is well known in Washington society, where she has visited her aunt, Mrs. John M. Russell, whose husband, Gen. John H Russell, is high commissioner in Haiti

MARY DELLA

A Serial Story

By JULIE ANNE MOORE.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Mary Della's laugh was genuine. It was full and musical and convincing, and the group, tremendously relieved for the moment, turned to her curiously.

"Lieutenant," Mary Della managed to say at last, "you're all balled up. Timmy can't b-b——" She began to laugh again and leaned heavily against Robert, who smiled down at her sympathetically. "Timmy can't be the Red Mask," she declared, with heroic effort to control her mirth. "He simply doesn't fit the picture."

"If the conference at the station had lasted a little longer, Miss Chubb," the detective explained, "you would have heard what we have learned about this young man. Ask the C. E. He's been working on the case with us."

"That's right, Miss Chubb," the C. E. declared. "There isn't much room for an error here. The only other bet was Joe Speaks. And he's out."

"He's out?" Mary Della repeated, confused.

"He's proved three out of four alibis as to his whereabouts on nights when the Red Mask was active," the detective explained. "And his alibi for the night the girl was killed out here is absolutely water-tight."

"Was he really playing—I mean shooting—craps?" Mary Della asked with a twinge of conscience.

The detective grinned. "He sure was. He lost about everything he had but his collar buttons, according to the half a dozen fellows we had over to the station."

Mary Della gazed off into the night. She had, she reflected, been unfair to Joe Speaks, but she was honestly grateful to know that her most recent suspicions concerning him were unwarranted. Now she turned to Timmy Fitzmoan.

"Timmy, I don't know whether the lieutenant's balmy or what, but this is all a lot of foolishness. Give him your string of alibis and let's go home."

Fitzmoan's expression softened. His shoulders sagged. His head fell forward until his chin rested on his shirt-front.

"We've been checking his whereabouts pretty closely," said the detective, "and he knows he's hemmed in on all sides."

"Tell him it's a lie, Timmy," Mary Della pleaded. "It is a lie, isn't it?"

Timmy Fitzmoan mumbled something under his breath.

"She didn't hear you," suggested the C. E., "though I did. Shall I tell her what you said?"

Timmy looked up sharply at the C. E., and the scowl was there again. Then he shifted his gaze to Mary Della. "I said I'm sorry, Mary Della."

"Timmy——"

"I read a story call 'The Plaster Face.' He went around holding people up—for the fun of it. Never hurt anybody if he could keep from it. The first time I just stuck my head up and laughed. I hit the fellow in the Middlebury road because he got tough. And the girl on the Brookside road—he lied about it. She said I tried to kill her. She didn't explain that the fellow with her ran off when I popped in and she grabbed my necktie and started screaming. I just hit her hard enough to shut her up so I could clear out."

Mary Della heard Timmy Fitzmoan's voice flowing on and on—a sickening monotone. She kept repeating to herself: "It's a lie! A lie! He's crazy. Why don't they shut him up. Lies!"

Some one said something about the policemen's ball.

"The Plaster Face did something like that. Blew up the power plant or something. Went walking over town sticking his masked face into lighted doors. I turned the lights out and put on the little red mask. The flashlight did the rest. Then I slid down a strip of bunting they'd dropped from the balcony to the floor. I didn't turn the lights back on; the cops did that."

Mary Della jumped to her feet.

"Don't you see that Timmy's lost his mind? All this is impossible. It's the silliest thing I ever heard of."

Timmy shook his head. "No, it's not, Mary Della. It's the truth. They've got the goods on me, and I might as well face it. It's mighty nice of you not to want to believe it, and I'm sure sorry about Saturday night. I mean about sneaking into your house."

It was as if he had struck Mary Della in the face. She drew back, quickly.

"How'd you know about that, Timmy? Did Miriam——"

Miriam shook her head, positively. "I didn't tell him, or anybody else honey."

"It was me, Mary Della," Timmy insisted. "I can tell you everything that happened."

"Oh, my lord!" wailed Mary Della. "They're trying to prove that white is black. He was pretty near twice your weight, Timmy, and his face—it was dead white, and full, and——"

"Hello!" called a voice from the darkness. "Do I get into this party or not?" It was George MacKray, approaching from the direction of Timmy's car.

George had his hands full—his arms, in fact. Over one arm was an overcoat. One hand held a derby and a piece of iron pipe. The other was hugging a curious object that at first glance looked like a white bowl of irregular shape.

"What's this?" the detective demanded.

"It's the junk I was to search the car for, isn't it? Or did you drop me off back there for exercise?"

"But what is it?" Robert asked.

"Better let me answer that," replied Timmy Fitzmoan. "Can I slip on the coat, lieutenant?"

The detective nodded. Fitzmoan slipped out of the overcoat he was wearing and got into the coat George MacKray held for him. Marvel of marvels. He was suddenly half again larger than his normal size. The coat was heavily padded, particulary through the shoulders and chest.

"Now give me the derby and the plaster," Fitzmoan directed.

"The what?" George asked.

But the man before him reached for the strange object, suddenly clapped it to his face and pulled the elastic over the back of his head. Then he put on the derby, and gazed about the group.

Miriam caught Mary Della as she toppled over on the running board.

"Take it off!" Miriam cried. "Can't you see you've scared her half to death!"

But Mary Della's eyes opened and she struggled to sit up.

"Thats him," she said weakly. "That's the Red Mask."

"Was that what you saw here that night?" the detective asked.

Mary Della nodded. "And in my house Saturday night," she added. She looked at Timmy Fitzmoan sadly. "Why did you come back wearing that thing Saturday night, Timmy?"

Timmy looked up quickly, then dropped his head again. "Remember what I told you on the landing before I left?" he inquired. "I was sore at Joe Speaks and I wanted you to think he was the Red Mask. When I went out I left the car in front of your place and bummed around the Center for a few minutes. When I came back I could see a light in your living room. I figured you were reading. Then the idea struck me that when I got on this coat and the derby I was about Speaks' size. I thought I'd go up, stick my head in the door and then run for it. I didn't think they'd keep Speaks in the lockup just for making a row at the pavilion."

The detective interrupted. "You didn't see the cop on the beat hanging out in the doorway of the bank?"

Fitzmoan looked at him in surprise. "No," he answered. "But it wouldn't of made any difference. I knew I wasn't suspected."

"For the last week everybody was suspected. The cop saw you and Miss Chubb go in, and he saw you come out. He was starting around the block when he saw you come back, take something out of the car, and go in again. He got the car number and made his report. We checked it up and couldn't make out anything important. But it gave us another channel to run out and we did. That's why I went looking for you at the store yesterday afternoon and at your home last night."

There followed a long and tense silence.

The C. E. inspected his watch. "It's getting late," he reminded them.

The detective nodded.

"Just a minute," Fitzmoan begged. "I'm not asking for any sympathy, but I want Miriam and Mary Della to know—about Salila. I didn't mean to kill her. Even a rotter like I am wouldn't kill his own sister on purpose."

Every one stared, incredulous.

"You say Salila Hicks was your sister?" The detective couldn't believe he had heard aright.

"Her name wasn't Hicks any more than mine's Fitzmoan. What the name used to be doesn't matter. But she made me mad and I hit her. I didn't know I'd done for her until I got her out here.

"Not so fast," said the C. E. "Why'd you hit her? I mean, how'd she make you mad? Did she know about you and——"

"That was the start of it," Fitzmoan volunteered. "It was the night after I scared that pair on the Middlebury road that Salila accidentally fished a little red mask out of my pocket. She made a big joke of it and wouldn't give me the mask back. 'The kid brother's gone in for highway robbery now,' she said. And when she got out of the car she hollered back to me: 'Don't ever talk about the way I make my living after this.'

"I never had robbed anybody, and it made me mad. But I kept my trap shut and went home.

"Then that night I was driving along West Main street when I saw Salila get out of a car at the west end of the Green. I stopped and asked her to get in with me. But she insisted on getting in the back. 'Well,' she said, 'I see where you beat up a young girl on the Brookside road the other night. You know,' she said, 'I got a good notion to give you away, Timmy, after the way you've treated Hop.' Hop was Salila's name for 'Snake' Womain. I hated him—hate him yet; but Salila was soft on him.

"'You're having pipe dreams,' I told Salila. 'Just because I happen to have a red mask in my pocket after a masquerade dance——' But she cut in on me. 'And how'd you happen to come into this outfit?' she asked, and shoved the plaster face in front of me.

"I clean lost my head then. The car hadn't moved since she got in. I grabbed up that piece of pipe from under my feet and struck her with it. She rolled over on the seat without a word. I thought she was kidding me.

"But after I'd called her two or three times and she didn't move, I drove off, through the Center and out East Main street.

"I knew by then that I'd either hurt her bad or killed her, and I didn't know what to do. I went almost to Cheshire before I figured out a plan. Then I drove back to this road.

"It was the blackest night I ever saw. I drove in here, spotted another car, and parked. Then I turned the lights out and got in the back seat. I couldn't make out whether Salila was alive or not. But something had to be done.

"I dragged her out of the car and laid her in the road."

Mary Della looked up from the running board. "That's another lie!" she spat at him. "The woman screamed twice after he parked."

The group turned to Fitzmoan again.

"That wasn't Salila," he said quickly. "That was me. I was sorry about the mysterious Red Mask. I pulled on the coat, the plaster face and the derby, stood between Salila and the car and screamed. I figured the couple in the other car would turn on the lights, see the Red Mask, and beat it."

"But they didn't turn their lights on, and I screamed again. Then I heard somebody getting out of the other car, and I figured I was in for trouble."

Mary Della waved her hand impatiently. "We know all about that," she told him sharply. "But don't forget I heard those screams, and it was a woman."

"Mary Della's dead right!" Robert declared. "No man could sceram like that."

He who called himself Timmy Fitzmoan looked at the detective. "Lieutenant," he said, "will you let me walk around the corner of that car for two seconds? Take your gun out and drop me if I try to run. But I promise you I won't. I just want to show Mary Della she's wrong."

"Why not here?" asked the detective.

"I want her to hear it the same way she heard it that night. Come on; take your gun out."

The detective hesitated. Then he produced a revolver from a hip pocket. "All right," he said; "walk off until I tell you to stop."

Fitzmoan strode off casually some 10 or 12 feet into the darkness.

Then he stopped and immediately the night was rent by a high, piercing scream that caused the group to gasp. It was the awful scream of a woman facing death.

And immediately after came the sharp report of a revolver and a flash in the darkness.

The men darted forward.

"Damn it!" exclaimed the detective. "He had another gun in that overcoat."

Mary Della and Miriam clung to each other, sobbing.

It was not until the next afternoon that Mary Della learned where Joe Speaks and Olga Svenson had gone on their ride. Miriam brought the news that they had driven down into New York State and had been married by a justice of the peace.

"It must have been a case of love at first sight," Miriam said, "and short sight at that. But I've learned my lesson, honey. I never was much of a vamp with the fellows, and from now on I'm satisfied to stay that way. Heard from Bob since last night, precious?"

"Give him time," Mary Della replied. "He's due to be waiting at the gate when we go out."

And there he was at the appointed hour in his exceptionally long and exceptionally yellow roadster.

Before the doorway leading to the Chubb flat the roadster stopped.

"You've had enough on your mind without my adding to your problems, Mary Della," Robert was saying. "But will you answer just one little question for me?"

Mary Della Chubb, of the clock shop and Bank street, and Robert Henry Calkman 3d, of Yale and Detroit, sat very close together and the many who hurried by stared at them curiously.

"Will you——" Robert began.

"I was so afraid you wouldn't start right, Bob," Mary Della confessed. "And we will be happy—in spite of your money . . ?"

"Not in spite of it, darling," answered Robert 3d wisely, "but because of it."

Speed Races In Afternoon Over WRC

WRC Sports Announcer to Broadcast Regatta Events; Poet Rogue in Challenge Series; Requests Upon WMAL.

The final races of the President's Cup Regatta in the Potomac River will be broadcast by WRC this afternoon. George F. Hicks, NBC sports announcer, will be on board one of the Coast Guard cutters anchored in the middle of the race course. Special lines have been connected from the Coast Guard cutter to shore by a submarine cable where it is then connected to WRC in the Press Building for broadcasting. The program is scheduled to begin at 2:15 o'clock.

Francis Villon, beloved poet rogue of the fifteenth century, is the hero of the second of the series of Famous Challenges to be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network at 7 o'clock by WRC. The challenging incident in his life chosen for this radio dramatization is taken from the episodes involving his defense of the honor of Henriette d'Orleans. Henriette was a much desired lady and when Louis XI succeeded to the throne of her uncle Charles VII she needed a brave defender. Villon, as always, was ready. The romantic personality of Villon is an ideal subject for the dramatics of radio. The beauty of his works, the chivalry of his soul, and the courage of his life—all are brought out in the dramatization.

Sixty minutes of music from the works of the most representative composers of Europe and America are included in the program to be broadcast during the General Electric hour through a coast-to-coast network at 8 o'clock. "A Sleigh Ride" from Palmgren's "Finland" is a selection from one of his native sketches. Hugo Wolf's sparkling "Italian Serenade" and Gooden's tone-painting of an English landscape, "By the Tarn," are further contributions to this group. Nathaniel Shilkret will direct the orchestra.

Semiclassical selections are featured in the program "When Summer Is Gone," to be broadcast at 7:30 o'clock. The orchestra, directed by Will Perry, will play a special arrangement of Chopin's "Prelude in B Minor." The women's octet offers "'Neath the Autumn Moon," by Vanderpool. A tenor solo, Milligan Fox's "The Foggy Dew," will be sung by Robert Simmons as another high light.

The Slumber Music for tonight follows: Overture to "Mireille," Gounod; selection from "Blue Kitten," Friml; "Ange d'Amour," Waldteufel; "Ballet Egyptien," Luigini; "Fairy Tales," Gretchaninoff, and "To a Wild Rose," MacDowell.

Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, will discuss "The Progressive in Pending Legislation" from WMAL at 9 o'clock.

Many of the selections to be heard during the broadcast of Romany Patteran from Station WMAL will be played in response to requests received from Gypsy bands throughout the country. These wandering folk have found these programs are recalling to them many of the old folk songs they but dimly remember, and are learning anew from the radio the melodies they first heard about their camp fires in far off Hungary.

Harriet Lee, contralto, will sing "Back in the Hills of Kentucky" during Jesse Crawford's broadcast at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Crawford will play "To a Wild Rose," MacDowell; "Amaryllis," Ghys; "Orientale," Cui, and "Do I Know What I Am Doing?" from "Why Bring That Up?"

Station WOL will be on the air from 6 until 8 o'clock this evening with a varied program. There will be dinner music, a mandolin and guitar program, Jeanette Leipsiger, 14-year-old pianist, and the Silver Spring Revelers.

Station WJSV will hold another house party at the Mount Vernon Hills, Va., studios and transmitting plant tomorrow afternoon between 2 and 5 o'clock. A program has been arranged especially for the visitors.

Tonight the station will present Bran Hughes' Rhythm Boys at 7:30 o'clock as the opening feature of the usual Saturday evening musical entertainment. The Waikiki Harmony Boys will be on the air at 8:45 o'clock, a musical saw program has been arranged for 9:30 o'clock, and the Shenandoah Ramblers have their regular place on the program—11:15 o'clock.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"VIRGO."

IF September 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 8:10 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 7 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger period is from 11:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m.

The unseen forces will have little influence upon your life on this date, and neither great fortunes nor misfortunes are augured. From a health standpoint, all is good. Affairs of the heart will remain at a standstill.

Self-reliance, ambition and modesty will be the most notable traits of the child born on this September 14. It will be musical and literary, kind-hearted and loving. It will need to develop assertiveness.

You are classed as a negative type person. You lack the decisiveness and definiteness of positive people. You are swayed by popular opinion, and you flock with the masses. It is seldom that you openly disagree with any one—your convictions are not your own. You are protected from personal war and strife by remaining on neutral grounds.

You make no radical enemies, and no passionate friendships—your passive friendships are legion. Your emotions neither carry you to dizzy heights nor drowning depths. You love gently and sweetly; you hate mildly. There are no extremes in your makeup.

Your own actions or foolhardiness alone will seldom cause you trouble or sorrow, but all through your life you are destined to suffer from the thoughtlessness and selfishness of others. You are rather powerless in your fight against circumstances, people and things.

Only the stress of circumstances will ever make you make the most of yourself. Material conditions permitting, you will drift through life without calling upon your reserve forces, and many of your talents will remain undeveloped. If you are ever driven against the wall, you have sleeping powers within to make you both courageous and splendid. Brutally speaking, adversity is your friend.

Successful people born September 14:

Julia Magruder—Author.
Hamlin Garland—Actor.
Charles Dana Gibson—Artist.

Full Display of Early Home-built Receivers Are Wanted for New York Show; Rare Apparatus Assembled.

The cooperation of radio fans is being sought to provide New York City with a complete historical radio exhibit, which will include, among other radio apparatus, a complete display of early home-built receivers. Cash awards will be paid to exhibitors of the best early models displayed at the forthcoming Radio World's Fair at Madison Square Garden, New York, beginning Monday, September 23.

Because of the interest in the project of Dr. F. C. Brown, curator of the Museum of Peaceful Arts, there will be no question as to a permanent home for the radio relics which the World's Fair search produces. Museum officials not only said that they would be most happy to receive the radio relics but that they contemplated enlarged quarters for a radio display in a "radio room" in the museum's new home to be selected this fall. It has even been suggested some of the rarer specimens might find their way to the National Museum in Washington.

"Hidden away and probably forgotten in attics, closets and other out-of-the-way places, in thousands and thousands of homes, within the metropolitan area," said G. Clayton Irwin, general manager of the Radio World's Fair, in explaining the lengths to which the search will go, "are countless numbers of antique radio receivers, worthless to the present owners, but valuable to the public when properly displayed with other radio apparatus in a museum."

"The first display of antique radio receivers will be held in Madison Square Garden during the radio show. A first prize of $100 will be paid to the owner of the oldest set, with a second prize of $35, a third of $25 and a fourth of $15. Judges will be engineers from the Radio Manufacturers Association."

The Radio Corporation of America has been assembling for many months rare pieces of apparatus which have played an important part in the development of radio.

As an indication of the authenticity and character of the forthcoming exhibit, it is announced that the instruments Marconi set up on Signal Hill, in bleak Newfoundland, in 1901, with which he first received wireless signals, flashed across the Atlantic, from Poldhu, England, will be displayed at the New York radio show.

Before leaving England to conduct this test Marconi had given detailed instructions for the transmission of a certain signal, the telegraphic code letter "S," three dots; and the problem of transatlantic radio telegraphy thus resolved itself into the reception of this letter.

At noon on December 12, 1901, Marconi sat waiting on Signal Hill, a telephone receiver glued to his ear. Before him on a table lay the simple instruments that were to make this trial to span the Atlantic by wireless of universal significance.

The zero hour had come. Marconi listened. Nothing but clicks of static. His assistant, Mr. Kemp, leaned forward in strained expectancy. Still nothing. A minute, yet an eternity, then through the slender wire high in the air came three dots. Again—dot, dot, dot. Over and over—the letter "S," symbol of man's conquest. Marconi had become one of the immortals.

W2XAF, of the General Electric Co., Schenectady, is rapidly attaining a reputation as the unofficial mouthpiece of ambassadors of Latin-American countries residing in Washington, in their direct and personal contacts with the people of their countries.

Several programs, arranged solely for South and Central American countries, have already been broadcast by this short wave transmitter, and others are planned for the remainder of this year.

The programs are arranged through the cooperation of the ambassadors of Latin-American countries, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, and the International General Electric Co. Radio authorities in the South American countries are cooperating and where possible the programs are rebroadcast, so that those not equipped with short wave receivers may hear the words of their ambassador and the musical numbers which make up the program.

The next program will be transmitted tomorrow evening at 5:45 o'clock, Eastern standard time, on the anniversary of the independence of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

Lori Interprets the Mode

Dressing to your type is the first step to distinction—and just to be goofy, here is a Dah-ray design that MIGHT have something to do with types!

At last! After all these years and years, after all these requests and requests after all our work, we finally offer you a personal type analysis!

Yes, I myself will just have time to give it to you before I leave again for Paris. All you have to do is send me a little letter, oh, a very little one, telling me only the color of your hair, the color of your eyes, the color of your skin and whether or not you have coloring in your cheeks.

I am going to read your letter, not La Chic Secretaire. And I myself am going to tell you what type you are, what colors are the most becoming to you and what shades and what colors are best for you to avoid.

You may think you know all this—but wouldn't it be nice to have some expert checking up on the matter? This is the information you will use forever, you know.

Just for a stamped, self-addressed envelope and your description—if you hurry! Better sit down and write that letter now, and drop it in the mail today, as this is the only time I will be able to give you this analysis.

• • • •

By the way, it may take you a few days and possibly longer before you receive your personal type analysis, so don't get all worried and discouraged, will you? You see, the letters have to be forwarded to me, and I will be in New York next week.

• • • •

Gee willikens, I wasn't able to go any further with that diet up until now! At that, before I give you the menus, here is a list you must very carefully keep. For identification let's call it list Number 1—for there is another list, Number 2, which you will get next week.

Vegetable List Number 1. Asparagus, asparagus tips, brussel sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, endive, beet greens, lettuce, sour pickles, radishes, rhubarb, sauerkraut, sorrel, spinach, string beans, Swiss chard, watercress and wax beans.

• • • •

Do you know the little about color you should know? You don't have to know so much, but if you don't know a few simple rules you can never do the best for yourself in the way of selecting colors which harmonize with your own coloring, which harmonize with each other—in short, you should send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the Dah-ray Color Chart! It will tell you just the little that you must know about color, and so clearly and simply that you can not fail to understand it.

• • • •

Clever Fingers Contest!

Contests are fun, anyway, you know, and when the prizes are so exactly what the Lovely Lady's heart desires, don't you feel that you just must enter? Simply tell us how to make something! Something useful, or just pretty, or both useful and pretty. Be sure to put you. name and address on the letter as well as the envelope.

• • • •

Are your nails "ten-pointe mirrors to reflect his kisses?" Your hands could so easily be lovely, with such a little care! Skin food at night, patted in, and then cosmetic or rubber gloves. Make it a habit, not a spasmodic thing.

The Sunday Post contains Dare's interesting weekly fashion letter regularly. You should look for it.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

STRENGTH AND MENTALITY.

THE big, strong, healthy child is bright. The puny, bespectacled child is otherwise. The popular notion to the contrary is all wrong. The opinion that the superior child physically is also superior mentally, as a rule, was announced by Terman and Baldwin several years ago. It has been confirmed recently by Dr. Herman Adler and a corps of investigators from the United States Public Health Service as the result of a study of the school children in two counties in Illinois. The study led to several conclusions, among which were the following:

The average weight of children with the I. Q. under 90 was 4 to 5 per cent less than that of children with an I. Q. of 90-109. I. Q. is an abbreviation of intelligence quotient. The intelligence quotient is supposed to be a measure of the intelligence, mental alertness or mental ability of a person. A 10-year-old child with an I. Q. of 100 is one with about the normal mental ability of a child of that age.

The investigation showed that the children of the average lower mental abilities were underweight, on the average. They also found that children of superior mental ability were about 3 per cent above the average in weight. The same general statements were found to hold true as to height, stature and vital capacity. However, the differences were not great.

As to the prevalence of physical defects and inferior mental capacity the findings had the same trend. Children with low mental capacity had more physical defects. Those with high mental capacity had fewer physical defects. The defects covered were bad teeth, enlarged tonsils and adenoids, poor vision, enlarged glands, ear troubles, poor posture and many others. Of these, defects of the ears, poor hearing, suppurating ears and other complaints seemed to lower mental capacity more than any other.

This association between mental incapacity and physical defects might have any one of three explanations. The physical defect may result in slower mental development; or, the family which would permit a physical defect to develop might also be one in which low mentality would be more or less expected; or, both kinds of defects might result from the same adverse condition of some kind.

Drs. Kemp and Collins, who report the result of this study, said they could not decide which one of these was the true explanation.

CAUSE OF BLIND STAGGERS.

M. L. D. writes: Will you please explain the cause of so-called blind staggers, i. e., right half of vision is blurred and blotted by zigzag streak lasting about ten minutes and getting more intense each minute. It clears suddenly, leaving one with nausea and severe headache. Are bad tonsils and teeth a cause

REPLY.

My guess is that the attacks are due to migraine. If so, it is not likely that the condition of your teeth and tonsils is responsible. The cure for migraine is not easy.

MAY HAVE VARIED CAUSES.

Mrs. M. G. writes: What causes the ankles to swell during the day? In the morning they are normal. I am 74 and seem to be well except ankles swelling, especially the left one.

REPLY.

There are several causes. Among them are organic disease of the kidneys, heart, or liver; disease of the veins of the legs, such as varicosities, wearing tight garments, hot weather. Many people have swelling of the feet, especially in summer time. The condition of the kidneys, heart, and liver should be investigated. If these are normal the condition is not of great importance.

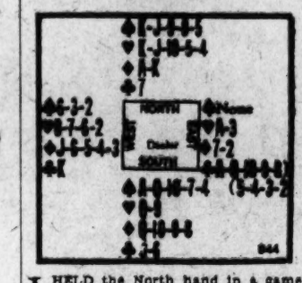
WORK ON BRIDGE

PARTNERS WHO HAVE SADDENED MY LIFE.



I HELD the North hand in a game of Contract. My Partner (South) was the dealer; he started by bidding one Spade. His hand may have been a little light for that bid, but upon that point I am not disposed to quibble. West passed; and my hand counting 27 for a Spade jump and having such remarkable assistance for that particular declaration, I felt that there was no question as to the propriety of my suggesting a slam. I accordingly bid five Spades and my partner accepted the invitation by bidding six. East doubled, and my partner—who was nothing if not an optimist—redoubled.

In the play the Four of Diamonds was the opening lead. It will be seen at a glance that the combined hands had a show down for a small slam but this is what happened:

After winning the Diamond and leading three rounds of Spades and then the Ace of Diamonds, my partner led a fourth round of Spades to trick to put the South hand in the lead so that North could discard his losing Club on the Queen of Diamonds. This was fine; but the next trick, instead of leading and establishing Hearts which would have insured his small slam, he led his Ten of Diamonds. Of course this forced my last trump and the adversaries then were able to win two Clubs and the Ace of Hearts as we were down two. As we were vulnerable, the loss was 300; as they had not won a game we could have made over 1,600.

Do you wonder that facing a 1,900 chuck I found it difficult to smile?

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk.

THIS letter, I want to share with you:

"Dear Uncle Ray: I like to think what sort of people might live on other planets, and suppose what they are doing. Sometimes I suppose that they are much farther ahead than the earth is, and sometime will invent an airplane or zeppelin that will fly to the earth, or that they have powerful telescopes and see us moving around down here and think us old-fashioned using autos and street cars. Other times I think that they might be back in the Cave Man age and use skins of strange animals that we never heard of. Your friend,

"Beth Henninger."

Beth is thinking the same thoughts as many other persons. It is likely that people of one kind or another live on certain planets. We can not say for sure, because we have never seen them; but the chances are good that if we could go to Mars or Venus, we should find life of some sort.

Both Mars and Venus have air and water. It appears that Mars is partly covered with snow at certain times, and that the snow melts in much the same way as on earth.

It may be that some of the stars (which are really distant suns) have planets going around them; and there may be people on thousands of those planets.

It is quite likely that there are planets with people in many stages of knowledge. Some may know so much more than we do, that we should feel ignorant beside them. On the other hand, the people of the earth are probably far ahead of some who, as we suppose, live on other planets.

At another time, I may take up the question of travel between the planets. As to telescopes, it is true that people on other planets may have much better ones than ours. We see mountains on the moon, but if there were people there our present telescopes could not be used for looking at them.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

A Lesson Learned.

DEAR Miss McDonald—I have written you before and if I had accepted your advice I probably would be a happy girl, instead of feeling sick and discouraged and disgusted with myself and life in general.

Well, my story is this: About two years ago I started going with a fellow two years my senior, who was everything anyone could ask for. He was devoted to me but I accepted it as my due and treated him as casually as possible, never dismissing him, just keeping him hanging on and accepting his gifts and good times.

When I went out with this one and that, he was always willing to overlook it and take me back. My mother kept telling me the day would come when he wouldn't be waiting when I wanted him, and I'd regret it. However, I just kept right on going my own way and finally told him I couldn't be bothered any longer, and that he had better go his own way and find another girl.

He was terribly broken up over it and told me I'd be sorry for it when it was too late. And, Miss McDonald, that's exactly what has happened. He is going with another girl and I'm just a "used-to-be."

I have been out of school and working a year now, and my mother says he should have had a little more patience. But that doesn't excuse my treatment of him, when I could have treated him at least as well as any of the other boys I went with.

I wish you could tell me what to do to get that horrible feeling off of my mind, that it's "all my fault." Sometimes it seems as though I'd never have any peace of mind again. Do you honestly think I was all to blame?

I have told him how sorry I am, but it is all quite futile. His faith in me is entirely gone, I guess, and the other girl seems to have caught him on the rebound, as it were, and I love him so!

I don't know how coherent this sounds, but if you could help me in any way I'd be very grateful.

If this is too long to print, just the answer would be appreciated.

WONDERING IF.

Don't you believe in fate? It's a most awfully comforting philosophy! For instance, right now, if you were a fatalist you would not be concerned with the "how" of this incident but with the "why." You would be convinced that there was very definite reason for the present situation and would be concerned with what the future had to reveal. Try it! It takes the sting out of so many otherwise intolerable experiences.

And even if you can not become fatalistic, even if only the evident appeals to your reason, there is comfort. How much better for you to have learned your lesson now when only a boy friend is involved than later in life when perhaps it just might be a perfectly good husband. Husbands really are sometimes lost through just the tactics that you used with the boy, you know—and they are seldom the same once lost. So cheer up, life is a school and a hard one. Lucky the ones who learn their lessons with the least cost in heartache—and learn them in time.

ENVY

The inception of crime is marked by the disregard of the rights and happiness of others.

To envy is to admit inferiority and lack of ambition to accomplish things for yourself.

If half the time spent in envying the success of another, and in brooding over failure to achieve, were spent in doing something productive, there would be no need to covet another's good fortune.

Growth comes from trying to accomplish what at the present moment seems impossible.

One of the greatest drawbacks to the winning of success is the tendency to evade the serving of apprenticeship.

Many of the most successful men have had a humble start and they do not hesitate to admit it. They are proof of the fact that success results from hard work, perseverance and being honest.

The man who is really great will not harbor thoughts of envy or begrudge another the fruits of his labors.

Not only the individual, but the world as a whole, would advance materially if this trait of envy were overcome and the spirit of good will and cooperation substituted therefor.

The whole question of moral uplift might be met in the simple teaching of respect for the rights and happiness of others. That thought properly imbedded in the mind of youth would go far toward the elimination of criminal tendencies.

Include consideration for others in the discharge of everyday affairs and the standard of morals will be ennobled and your life a success.

LOSSES WIPED OUT IN NEW BULL DRIVE

Stock Market Rallies Late, After Suffering Early Downswing.

CALL FUNDS 7 PER CENT

New York, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—The stock market, staggering under the weight of a top-heavy speculative position, tripped over the unexpected increase in brokers' loans today and floundered about wildly for a moment, only to regain its footing and rush forward with renewed bullish fury. Early losses of 3 to 15 points were regained, and prices were irregularly higher at the close.

Trading was at a feverish pace, the day's turnover once more crossing the 5,000,000-share mark, and control of the market shifted between the bears and the bulls with confusing swiftness. During the first hour of trading the market appeared to ignore the brokerage loan figures, but when selling appeared in increasing volume, pool operators withdrew support and let prices sink until early afternoon, when a drop from 8 to 7 per cent in the call loan rate prompted short covering, and a rally ensued, the occasion to renew their operations with violence.

Interpretations placed upon the loan figures were varied, some traders pointing to the increase of $120,000,000, during a week of sagging prices, as indicating that stock was passing from strong to weak hands, while others explained the increase as largely attributable to new financing and regarded with satisfaction the reduction of loans by New York banks and the paying up of borrowings at the Federal Reserve.

Overbought Condition Seen.

It was rather generally agreed, however, that the market's sensitiveness to this increase in loans, after it has been able to ignore several successive increases lately, indicated an overbought condition in need of a corrective shake out.

Aside from the overnight Federal Reserve loan and condition statements, there was little in the day's news of a character to influence the market. The sag in call money was regarded as reflecting the piling up of funds here against the midmonth settlements, rather than any definite improvement in credit. Bankers are still predicting firmer money next week.

Market operations remained largely professional, and commission houses generally advised their clients to curtail commitments until conditions become more settled. The weekly trade and industrial reviews were generally pleasing, reporting a marked upturn in wholesale and retail trade, and further speeding up of activity in some of the lighter manufacturing industries.

Losses Practically Wiped Out.

The morning break carried such representative issues as American Telephone, General Electric and Westinghouse Electric down 8 to 6 points, but these losses were practically wiped out later. American Machine and Foundry dropped 10 points, practically all of which was regained, and Midland Steel Products preferred dropped 15 and rallied 10. American Can and U. S. Steel sank about 3 and 4½ points, respectively, but rallied, the latter closing fractionally higher.

Bullish operations during the afternoon centered in the merchandising, railroad equipment, radio and some of the utility issues. May Department Stores was hurled up more than 24 points in what appeared to be a driving in of shorts. R. H. Macy jumped 9 points, but closed only 5 higher. In the equipments, Pullman was a conspicuous performer, rising 9 point to a new peak at 95. Grigsby-Grunow rose nearly 4 points to a new high for the present stock, and Radio closed moderately higher.

Columbia Gas and United Corporation displayed simultaneous strength, giving rise to rumors that United will increase its holdings of Columbia, which rose more than 13 points to a new high price. United was heavily bought, closing a couple of points higher. American and Foreign Power rose about 10 points to a new peak in response to its earnings statement.

Few Rails in Fair Demand.

A few of the rails were in fair demand, Chesapeake & Ohio selling up more than 5 points. In the oils, Royal Dutch was again strong, and Sun penetrated further into new high ground, but Standard of New Jersey closed barely steady. Worthington Pump and Otis Elevator were buoyant, rising 19 and 14 points, respectively.

In the commodities cotton rallied about $1 a bale on short covering, influenced by reports of too much rain in the South and relatively steady Liverpool cables. Wheat, corn and sugar futures moved in narrow ranges.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. The sterling demand rate sagged to $4.84⅛, a new low for the year, and the Canadian dollar dropped to a discount of more than ¾ of a cent. French francs, however, were firm.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

TILDEN AND HUNTER REACH U. S. SINGLES FINALS

Hit by Judge, 3 on, Beats Tribe, 4-3

Double to Fence in 8th Off Miljus Climaxes Nats' Rally.

Marberry Puts Down Counter-Rally After Burke Fails.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

FRIDAY, the 13th, proved a lucky combination yesterday for the Nationals in general and for Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones, in particular, as he was credited with turning in a 4-to-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians, enabling the Nats to gain half a game on the idling Detroit Tigers, although he was anything but effective.

In fact, the goodly gathering of fans, including many "ladies' day" guests, was almost stunned when the Nationals, who had been outplayed throughout, suddenly took advantage of Lefty Milburn Shoffner's wildness in the eighth and packed away the verdict. Joe Judge was the hero on this particular occasion, for he doubled with the bases full to score all three runners.

It was the Nat captain's second two-base blow of the contest and turned what appeared to be almost certain defeat into victory, although the fans were given another thrill in the Tribes' ninth, seeing first Bob Burke and then Fred Marberry pressed to the limit to keep the fighting Indians from staying licked.

Shoffner Gets Wild With Two Out.

Two were out when Shoffner, who had also displayed wildness in the previous session, walked Ruel and Hayes in succession. At this stage of the proceedings, Manager Peckinpaugh called on John Miljus for relief duties. The latter found Red Barnes facing him as a pinch hitter for Jones. Barnes worked a pass, filling the bases, and two strikes had been called on Judge when he picked out one to his liking and slapped it against the right-field fence. Ruel and Hayes scored easily, but it took some fancy leg work for Barnes to beat the peg home with what, as things turned out, proved to be the deciding run.

Just how Jones, who granted at least one hit in all but two of the eight innings he toiled at the first man up in six hitting safely, was able to hold the Tribe to but two runs is difficult to explain. He was in hot water constantly, three Indians being stranded in each of the third, fifth and sixth frames, and was generally ineffective throughout. Twice good plays by Hayes and Judge helped him out, once a runner was nipped at the plate, while he has Joe Cronin to thank in the fifth.

Cronin Rescues Jones By Brilliant Stop.

In this frame the Nats' shortstop came through with a really sensational stop of a mile-a-minute grass-cutter behind Jack Hayes for a force play at second with two out and the runways loaded. Cronin had no chance for a play anywhere else and his peg to Myer, covering second, was almost as brilliant as the stop, as he was unbalanced when he wheeled and made it.

The alien sixth, although it netted three hits, saw Jones wiggle out of another tough situation, and that

Cubs Must Stop Foxx, Simmons, Says Scout

Philadelphia, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Joe Tinker, scouting the Philadelphia Athletics for the Chicago Cubs, believes that to beat the A's in the world's series, the Cubs will have only to stop Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx from hitting.

"If we can stop Simmons and Foxx," Tinker said today, "the series is ours. They are the only men we are afraid of. The Athletics have a good ball team, but the kid on first and the big boy in the outfield are the only ones we'll worry about.

"Haas and Miller are good ball players and Mickey Cochrane is a great catcher, but good as they are the fellows that worry me are Simmons and Foxx. Them and George Earnshaw; maybe Jack Quinn, too.

"The Cubs will murder Grove and Walberg. Our players eat up southpaws. Earnshaw may bother us and old Jack Quinn may give us trouble. Old Jack's been around a long while. I often look at him working out and wonder why I'm not still playing myself."

Tinker, who was a sparkling member of the old double-play combination—Tinker to Evers to Chance—played in the world's series against the Athletics in 1910.

2 More Games Needed by Mackmen

Simmons' 30th Home Run Beats White Sox, 5 to 2.

Young Ed Walsh Is Loser Despite Giving Only 6 Hits.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Al Simmons clubbed the Athletics to within two games of pennant certainty here today when he hit his thirtieth home run in the eighth with two on base. The blow broke a 2-to-2 tie and enabled the Athletics to defeat young Ed Walsh and the White Sox by 5 to 2.

Walsh was close with his hits, surrendering only six, but two of the drives were triples by Simmons and Bishop and two were home runs, Joe Boley hitting for the circuit in the third inning.

Howard Ehmke redeemed recent indifferent showings by holding the White Sox to seven blows before giving way to a pinch batsman in the eighth. An error by Dykes in the fifth paved the way for the two Chicago runs. Bob Grove pitched the ninth for the Athletics.

Win of Little One II in Hydroplane Race Is Feature.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

RICHARD F. HOYT'S Imp II, which captured the famous Gold Cup race at Red Banks, N. J., several weeks ago, won the first lap of the President's Cup race on the Potomac yesterday with practically no competition. The flashy little white and gold boat roared away to a quick lead over the only other entry in the race, Jersey Lightning, and at the end of the first spin around the oval the winner was one-half mile in the lead. The time, 47.13 miles per hour, was the slowest time the race has ever been run in.

Jersey Lightning, driven by Capt. F. C. Erickson, developed engine trouble after the first circuit and, at the end of the 15-mile grind, the winner had lapped the trailing boat. Capt. Erickson made quick repairs and finished the lap.

The Jayee II, the Washington entry of W. S. Corby, was forced out of the President's Cup race competition at the last moment when it was found that the craft did not agree with marine specifications for the race, leaving only The Imp II and Jersey Lightning to compete. Mechanics worked on the Jersey Lightning until last night and it was announced that the boat would be ready for the second heat today. The Jayee II, driven by Miss Eleanor Corby, will race in the ladies' free-for-all event, and in the men's free-for-all race will be piloted by George Wood, brother of Gad Wood, world record holder.

The ease with which the Imp took the first heat of the feature race and the lack of entries dwarfed it beside the contests between smaller boats. The hydroplane 151 race, both heats and the final of which were won by Vern Squire's Little Jean, grabbed off all of the glory, furnished most of the thrills of the more or less drab afternoon.

Near Tragedy Mars Final On Program.

The final race of the day, class D outboard motors, furnished a near-tragedy when Travis Chestnut's Pony Boy collided with Speed Craft, operated by Frank Davis, and upset. Chestnut clung to his boat until coast guardsmen reached him and hauled him and his boat to safety.

"BIG BILL" REPULSES DOEG IN FIVE SETS, FLASHING OLD FORM

Youthful Californian Eliminated by 4-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Hunter Triumphs Over Mercur With Hard Drives.

By TED VOSBURGH.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—A series of wonderful, heart-breaking drives plucked out of the past, when his racquet shots were heard around the tennis world, carried Big Bill Tilden into the final round of the national singles championship tournament today after the hardest battle any young American has ever forced him to wage on the West Side Stadium turf.

Johnny Doeg, a great California tennis star, well worthy of the traditions of Little Bill Johnston and "Red Mac" McLoughlin, forced Big Bill into the shade of defeat when he took a lead of two sets to one, but lost out in an epochal five-set battle decided by scores of 4—6, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3.

The old guard was triumphant on every hand. Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, N. Y., the 35-year-old newspaper publisher, came through in the other semifinal, battering young Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa., into submission with his famous forehand drive by scores of 6—4, 6—8, 6—4, 8—3.

Tilden Favorite to Win Title Today.

Thus some of the fireworks twinkled out of the final, set for tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Tilden always has been able to beat his old friend and will be heavily favored to win the national crown for the seventh time. It will be the tenth time in twelve years that Big Bill has been a finalist for the biggest individual tennis honor the United States has to offer.

Frank Shields, a lanky 19-year-old, gave Tilden a memorable four-set battle in the third round of play on Tuesday. Johnny Van Ryn, 23, of Davis Cup doubles fame, gave him stroke for stroke through four more thrilling sets in the quarter-finals yesterday, but it remained for the 180-pound, 6 feet 1 inch Doeg to extend Big Bill in a five-set match that held a gallery of 7,000 enthralled through two and one-half hours of brilliant tennis.

Doeg Plays Like Champion In Defeat.

The strapping California youth, 20 years old and a sophomore at Stanford University, showed that he may yet inscribe his name on the roll of national champions. He brought into action, perhaps, the most withering service and some of the strongest volleying that Tilden has ever had to face.

Yet Tilden, his back to the wall as Doeg came charging in again and again to catch his returns on the wing and smother them, came through in the pinch with a succession of blistering drives that whizzed past Johnny's outstretched racquet and clipped the side lines with marvelous precision.

It was thus that Big Bill broke through Doeg's service in what proved to be the next to the last game of the match after having taken the lead at four games to three with a burst of four successive service aces for a love game a moment later.

Californian Twice Wards Off Match Point.

Doeg never ceased to fight. With Tilden serving in the final game, he twice warded off defeat when the old master stood at match point. Once Tilden chopped one of Doeg's well-placed volleys outside of the court when keeping it in would have meant the match. Again he netted the all-important point. But victory finally came his way when an overhead smash from Doeg's racquet fell an inch outside the lines.

In the match with Mercur, Hunter crushed his opponent by the sheer battering power of his forehand drives. The ball bounded hardly at all on the damp turf and it was so well placed in the corners that Mercur never had a chance to get set. Thus it was that Hunter demoralized the game of one of the smoothest, all-around players in the country.

Cubs' Rally Is Short As Phils Win, 7 to 6

Chicago, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Philadelphia postponed Chicago's clinching of the National League championship by defeating the Cubs by 7 to 6 here today in the final game of the year between the two teams. Rogers Hornsby set 30,000 fans into an uproar in the ninth with his thirty-sixth home run, but Claude Willoughby saved the game after the Bruins had rushed the tieing run to third and the winning one to second.

Mental Lapse Lets Robins Defeat Reds

Cincinnati, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—The Robins saved the last game of the series by taking advantage of Joe Stripp's mental lapse in the fourth inning here today to win, 4 to 2, after dropping the first two engagements to Cincinnati.

With nobody out and runners on first and second, Stripp fielded Moss' blow, and instead of touching third and trying for a double play at first or second, tossed the ball straight to first. A single and two sacrifices following gave the Robins three runs and the gall game. Kolp and Ash opposed Moss.

Pitt Eleven Appears Menace With Great Back Field Intact

This is another of a series on the prospects of major football elevens.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Year in and year out the Panthers of Pittsburgh, mighty youths drawn to higher education from the coal mining regions and steel mills of Pennsylvania, bulk large on the Eastern football horizon. This year they promise to be a positive menace.

A mere matter of three graduated linesmen is all that Silent Jock Sutherland, the taciturn Scot, has in the way of coaching worries. It just happens that developing great linemen is right down Jock's alley. The Panther forward wall usually is as close with first downs as Sutherland is with words. Only seven were gained against Pittsburgh all last season.

Crack Back Field of 1928 Intact.

With a crack back field intact, the Panthers need only replace Alex Fox at guard, Mike Getto at tackle and "Honey" Guarino, an end. They were outstanding stars last fall on a team that lost only to West Virginia and Carnegie Tech and held the Corn Huskers of Nebraska to a scoreless tie. It was a team entirely rebuilt after losing seventeen of the lettermen who conquered the East but lost to Stanford in the Tournament of Roses game in 1927.

So, with but three men to replace this year, Sutherland is almost optimistic. He has a crusading veteran back field that is a delight to football eyes, led by "Pug" Parkinson, a 196-pound full back, filled with the primeval urge to rip apart everything that gets in front of him. Toby Uansa, fast and shifty, is one running mate, and Josh Williams, another spectacular fellow, the other. First-string quarter-back job lies between Charley Edwards, last year's pilot, and Ed Baker. The better punter will get the assignment.

Donchess, Brilliant End, Returns.

Back in the line are Joe Donchess, a great end; Charles Tully, tackle; Ray Montgomery, center, and Capt. Al di Meolo, one of the finest running guards in the East. Mongomery may shift to guard with Daugherty, a freshman sensation last fall, at Center. Jim MacMurdo, a dough youngster, will take Getto's place with Paul Collins and Ed Herschberger fighting it out for the end assignment. They are all big fellows, ranging between 180 and 200 pounds, and there are more like them.

Pitt has a sturdy schedule. Duke will furnish the opposition at Durham, N. C., October 5; Nebraska, at Lincoln, October 19, and Ohio State here November 2. Old rivals, Waynesburg, West Virginia, Allegheny, Washington and Jefferson, Carnegie Tech and Penn State fill out the card.

Petrolle Quits Ring After Beating by Tut

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Billy Petrolle, of Fargo, N. Dak., who took a decisive beating at the hands of King Tut, of Minneapolis, last night in a 10-round bout, is through with boxing, according to his manager, Jack Hurley.

Hurley, who piloted Petrolle to a leading place among the lightweights, announced the Fargo boxer's retirement after last night's bout. "He's all through," said Hurley; "he has agreed to it. There is no use in his sticking to the game and getting punched around. I always said that as soon as he started losing to fighters who had no right to beat him, he would quit, and he has."

Campbell, Ex-Nat, Is Bought by Reds

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Purchase of Archie Campbell, pitcher of the St. Paul Club of the American Association has been announced by President McDiarmid, of the Cincinnati Reds.

Campbell formerly pitched for the New York Yankees, but was sent to St. Paul last year, from where the Washinton Nationals drafted him and later this season sent him back to the Saints.

McKechnie to Give Up Baseball for Politics

Pittsburgh, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, last night heard his manager, Bill McKechnie, tell the voters of his home town of Wilkinsburg, a suburb, that if they elected him tax collector, he'd quit baseball, and Rickey, with a radio "mike" in front of him, said the Cardinal management had made a mistake when they shifted Bill to Rochester last winter.

Pie Traynor and Paul and Lloyd Waner, of the Pirates, were other speakers at the combined "welcome home" and political rally to boom Bill's candidacy.

WHITNEY ENTRY 1 TO 6 CHOICE IN FUTURITY TODAY

Juvenile Aces Contest for $135,000

Whichone and Boojum Stand Out; Mud May Stop Latter.

10 Other 2-Year-Olds to Go in Classic's 40th Running.

By ORLO L. ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Ten of America's smartest turf juveniles tonight faced the task of wresting the 2-year-old championship from Harry Payne Whitney's great combination of Whichone and Boojum in the fortieth running of the $135,000 Futurity at Belmont Park tomorrow.

Given only an outside chance of defeating the entry that ran one, two in the Hopeful, at Saratoga, and declared to be the fastest pair of youngsters ever to tread American turf, the ten aspiring juveniles will go to the post at odds varying from 4 to 1 on the W. R. Coe entry to 40 to 1 on Sir Johren. In contrast the Whitney pair will face the barrier at odds of 1 to 6 or still lower if the 7-furlong racing strip down the Widener chute remains fast.

Caruso and Maya Second Choices.

If the track, however, should become muddy, as seemed probable tonight, the odds may lengthen, as Boojum, creator of a new American record for 6 furlongs in winning the Hopeful, showed a decided dislike for heavy going when he ran third to Whichone and Gone Away in the Champagne Stakes a week ago. Whichone, however, knows no difference in tracks, running equally as well on a pasteboard course as in mud.

The bookmakers and wagering public have placed the task of defeating the Whitney duo on the Coe entry of Caruso and Maya, which is quoted at 4 to 1. Caruso ran third to the Whitney pair in the Hopeful. The only other entry in the race will carry the colors of the Three D's Stock Farm, of Texas. The pair are Broadway Limited, the $65,000 son of Man o' War, which has still to win a race, and Pansy Walker, an outstanding filly.

Jolly Roger Favorite in $35,000 Steeplechase.

As Harry Payne Whitney has the inside track on the Futurity so has Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable in the $35,000 added Grand National Steeplechase—the year's headliner race for jumpers. A field of six will oppose the 7-year-old Jolly Roger in his attempt to win his third Grand National under the Greentree silks.

Paired with Jolly Roger in the 3-mile race will be Fairfield, rated as one of the leading fencers of the year. The champion of the past two years will carry the top weight of 167 pounds, two more than the ruler which defeated the Greentree pair in a shorter race a week ago. Fairfield is in with 152 pounds.

The Warm Stable's The Nut, ruling 3-mile race will be Fairfield, rated of his career when he attempts to take the measure of Double Pay, Diavolo and African in the Jockey Club Gold Cup, which will be run over the 2-mile course. The rice has an added value of $0,000 and completes the richest stake day of American turf.

G. U. GRIDMEN ROMP THROUGH TEMPLE IN DRILL

Varied Attack Rips Foes' Defense

Stunning Reversal of Form in Scrimmage Elates Little.

Line-Up Is Changed; Leary Continuing as Quarter Back.

By JACK ESPEY
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Sept. 13.—Friday the 13th may be unlucky for some people but not for Georgetown's football players. Lou Little's gridiron gladiators called this Friday their most profitable day of the preseason training grind.

They went over to Atlantic City, scene of their sad showing of Wednesday, and literally tore the Temple University squad to shreds in a lively scrimmage. Tonight they got their reward; Coach Little permitted them to stay out until 11 o'clock. The cheer that greeted this announcement shook the boardwalk.

For a squad that had passed only eleven days in training, Georgetown today performed marvelously. It stopped the touted Temple back field of Wearshing, Hansen, Marsella and Shulz dead in their tracks and entirely smashed all but one of the Owls' offensive plays.

Taking the ball themselves after twenty minutes of defensive work, the Hilltoppers ran wild through their opponents, gaining ground on seven of ten plays attempted, and twice getting the ball carrier free of the last defender.

Leary Cleverly Directs Revamped Line-up.

The Temple coaches as well as Little and his assistants were amazed. Only two days ago these same Georgetown players looked terrible, particularly on the offense. But today, with Ed Leary, the promising junior, at quarter back, directing matters, they plowed through Temple's line, skipped around the ends and shot passes overhead which completely baffled the Philadelphians.

Perhaps, it was the shifting of some of the players which accounted for the rejuvenation. Leary was at quarter in place of Gardner; Morris took the center role in place of Wynkoop and Brennan supplanted Parlette at one of the ends. As on Wednesday Capt. Jim Mooney did not play due to the injury of a finger, while Hudak, full back, and Cordovano, tackle, were inactive with slight sprains. Bozeski, hefty sophomore, filled in for Hudak and Katalinas, another sophomore, took Cordovano's position.

Bordeau Nets 20 Yards On First Play.

On the first play after Georgetown got the ball, Bordeau smashed through the center of Temple's line for about twenty yards. Leary followed with an off-tackle slice which was good for ten. Then Leary mixed up his attack and called for a pass, taking the heave himself from Maczees and eluding every Temple tackler.

Neither side attempted to score. The ball was called back as soon as the carrier was downed or reached the open field. On a trick play, which Temple used effectively on Wednesday, Georgetown gained more ground than the original users. This caused Coach Heinie Miller of the Owle Owls no little embarrassment. Schmid and Leary executed this play, the former faking a line buck and tossing sort of an underhand lateral pass to Leary who followed fast moving interferers and swept the flank for what would have been an easy touchdown in a regulation game.

Brennan and Katalinas Sparkle in Line.

In the revamped front line, Katalinas and Brennan gave sparkling exhibitions. Morris the new pivot man also showed up well. Brennan, who is comparatively small for an end but as tough as nails, spilled interference like a veteran of many campaigns, while Katalinas, a rapidly improving youngster blessed with plenty of poundage and fighting spirit, simply refused to be taken out by the offensive ends and half back. Morris turned in several bits of smart football as a roving center.

A second Georgetown combination followed the starting eleven on the field and also performed creditably. This group numbered Parlette and Flood, ends; Walsh and Anderson, tackles; Muir and Montanus, guards; Wynkoop, center; Bozek, quarter back; P. Mooney and Hornyak, half backs, and Gillis, full back. Coach Little kept changing this team until all members of the squad, excepting those injured, tasted action.

Little Silent on Team's Make-up.

To say Little was pleased about the sudden improvement would be putting it mildly. He was wreathed in smiles.

However, he would not divulge any plans he may have formed from the day's proceedings as to the permanent varsity line-up. He declared that the line-up which will open the season on September 28 against Mount St. Mary's will not be determined for at least another week.

The thirteenth was still luckier when Coach Little learned tonight that John Hudak had fully recovered from a nerve disorder in his back. Hudak visited a chiropractor in Atlantic City this afternoon, who found the trouble immediately and sent the player back here feeling fit once more.

Bull Montana, Actor, Wrestler, Will Wed

Los Angeles, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Louis "Bull" Montana, former wrestler and now a film heavy, and Mary Poulson, 23, have filed intentions to wed.

Montana said the wedding would take place "next week, maybe." Last year Jackie La Verne, a dancer, who claimed she was Montana's wife, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by the actor. He refused to prosecute her, however, and the case was dropped.

STAR ROOKIE TO OPPOSE NATS

Peck to Send Ferrell Against Brown in Game Today.

ROGER PECKINPAUGH, who did not draw a suspension for his argument with Umpire Geisel in Thursday's game, and his Indians are scheduled to make their 1929 adieu here this afternoon. The contest is important to both teams, as the Clevelanders are battling to hold third place in the race while the Nationals are excited over their chances of beating out the Tigers for fifth. The Harrismen, by the way, will be the next team to show up here, opening up with a double-header tomorrow, and Johnson's team wants to be near enough to pass them in the coming series.

Wesley Ferrell, the sensational rookie who has a record of seventeen victories against nine defeats, is expected to do the flinging for the visitors, while Manager Johnson has decided to take a chance on Lloyd Brown, the young southpaw who, on occasions, has done some good pitching this year.

Engel Empty-Handed After Scouting Trip.

Scout Joe Engel returned from Baltimore yesterday empty-handed. In addition to taking another peep at Outfielder George Leopp, a proposition for whose purchase the Nats are considering, Washington's "boy scout" also watched the work of two other players whose identity he refuses to disclose.

Catcher Roy Spencer's injury, a spiked right thumb, is painful but not serious, and he will be kept out of action for two or three days more. As Johnson was calling on Spencer and Tate, two youngsters, for most of the work, the former's layoff is bringing Muddy Ruel into action against southpaw hurling.

Pitcher Garland Braxton watched yesterday's game from a box near the Washington dugout. While all signs of infection have disappeared from the wound in his leg, the result of a minor operation last Sunday, the slim southpaw is still weak from his three-day term in bed.

Skipper Walter Johnson evidently has given up expecting much from Adoph Liska this season, and the subway rookie likely will do little work except pitching in batting practice or a possible relief shift while the 1929 schedule is being completed. This also goes in Irving Hadley's case, although the Nats' leader is confident that both will be back to the races in top form for consideration next spring.

Judge Assists Hayes on Two Clever Plays.

Third Baseman Jack Hayes and Capt. Joe Judge collaborated on two nobby plays in yesterday's game. In the fourth Jack went over behind third for Hodapp's hot grounder, and Judge made a fine leaping catch of the hurried peg, while the first baseman had to stretch at full length in the fifth to take Hayes' throw on Tavener's sacrifice with his gloved hand.

Pitchers Shoffner and Jones were both doing a little sharp shooting in the early innings yesterday, and each credited with a bullseye. The Indian winged Rice in the third, while Jones got his man in the fifth when he bounded one off Lew Fonseca's left elbow. Fonseca finished that inning on the bases, but gave way afield to Joe Hauser, former Mack first sacker.

Trainer "Lefty" Wisemann reported later that Fonseca's arm was merely bruised and that no bones were broken. In the seventh Shoffner became 1 up when he hit Jones.

HOMER WINS FOR BLUE SOX, 5-4

Rawlings, D. C. Boy, Is Hero as Hagerstown Wins.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 13.—It was Reggie Rawlings, a native of Washington and oldest player in point of service in the Blue Ridge League, who was the hero of today's fifth game of the play-off series between the Martinsburg Blue Sox and Hagerstown Hubs for the league pennant. Rawlings, a discarded Martinsburg player who had served with the West Virginia team since the organization of the league thirteen years ago until this season, when he came to Hagerstown, opened the tenth inning with a long homer over the left center-field fence, breaking a 4-all tie and making Hagerstown 3 up on Martinsburg.

Hagerstown needs to win but one of the two games scheduled tomorrow in Martinsburg to cop the pennant. If rain should wipe out the games, Hagerstown will win the flag, as the series must be completed by tomorrow.

"Doc" Cramer, Athletics recruit and leading hitter of the league, pitched the entire game for Martinsburg, and aside from the second inning, when Hagerstown scored four runs, was never in danger until Rawlings' home run broke up the game.

Lefty Gilbert started for Hagerstown, but Martinsburg kept pecking away until it finally tied the score in the seventh by scoring two runs. Meola, who was knocked out here last Wednesday, finished the game without yielding a run. Several times during the closing innings Martinsburg got runners on second, but never could produce the necessary hit.

Rawlings, after hitting his homer, had difficulty in circling the bases, the crowd rushing on the field and attempting to pick him up and carry him off. Manager Kelliher, however, prevailed upon them to wait until he crossed the plate.

THE IMP II TAKES FIRST REGATTA HEAT

The winning time was 6 minutes 33 seconds for the 2½-mile course.

The opening races of the regatta furnished the spectators with few thrills but when the little hydroplane 151's jockeyed for position in front of the starting boat the number of entries alone made the onlookers expectant.

Little One II and Lightning II roared around the course with the drivers shoulder to shoulder, Lightning II, driven by Vincent Basace, held its own on the straight way but Varne Squire had a slight edge over his opponent on the turns.

Displacement Free-for-all Is Feature.

One other race created unusual interest. This was the displacement free for all, which was won by Wildgold, driven by William Elliott. H. W. Flickenger's Carenaught was second. Seven boats started but the struggle for first place was between the ultimate winner and runner-up throughout. Carenaught took the lead at the start and held it for about half the race, but Wildgold nesed its way into the lead and, after a pretty nip and tuck battle, won by 50 yards.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. will move its main exchange from Fourteenth and G streets northwest to its new home, 722 Twelfth street northwest, some time this week. At the same time the system will be changed so that the telephones will all be operated by merely removing the receiver without turning the bell crank.

Delegates representing the three bowling leagues, the departmental, bank clerks and the real estate, held a meeting to discuss and adopt plans and arrange for distribution of prizes to the winners. The Washington Post will present medals to members of the championship team.

Wiley Gibson, a youth, being held in the Lee County Jail at Jonesville, Va., to await conveyance to the penitentiary at Richmond to serve five years for robbery, made good his escape by leaving the prison clad in the dress and bonnet of his aged mother, who had been left alone with him to say good-by.

Joseph S. Potter, who for fifteen years was identified with the consular service and particularly to the exportation of silk from Germany to the United States, died at his home, 1845 Fourth street northeast.

Upon recommendation of Commissioner West, who now writes golf for The Post, $1,000 was appropriated from the emergency fund to purchase gas stoves and filters for boiling and filtering water for public school children. This is in compliance with a request from the board of education as a means to combat typhoid fever.

GOVERNMENT BONDS DISPLAY BEST TONE

Market Generally Moves in Listless Manner; Convertibles Erratic.

OIL ISSUES ARE SOFT

New York, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—In the absence of any sustaining influences, the bond market gave a lifeless performance today. Price movements were irregularly lower, although most of the changes on the down side were of minute proportions.

The best appearance was made by the United States Government obligations, but their showing was dispirited, and while gains of ¼ or less predominated, the buying was on a small scale.

The day's feature was the erratic course of the convertibles, which sagged as much as 5 points during the forenoon selling of stocks and then regained all but fractions of their declines. International Telephone 4½s, after selling 4½ points below the previous close, managed to finish even with the Thursday final. American Telephone 4½s, freely liquidated around midday, bounded back in the afternoon and showed a net loss of only ⅜. Atchison 4½s and Reading Coal & Iron 4s were able to score small fractional advances after their recovery from the depression.

In the case of investment mortgages, the easy tone was more the result of apathy than liquidation. Inquiry for the low coupon rails dragged and transactions were mostly at price concessions. Central New England 4s changed hands 3⅝ points lower at about their year's minimum, and Chicago & Alton 3s lost 1. New York Central-Michigan Central collateral 5½s were pared off 5¼ points on a single sale of $6,000, principal amount.

Utilities and industrials behave in much the same manner. Columbia Gas and Electric 5s softened more than a point, while Postal Telegraph and Cable 5s dipped 1½. Steel company obligations were mostly lower, with losses of ½ to 1 in Otis Steel 6s and Lackawanna Steel 5s. North American Cement 6½s touched the new bottom price of 84¾.

Oil bonds found sentiment on the selling side and Shell Union 4s again made a new minimum at 92½. General Petroleum 6s accompanied them into low ground on a 1-point loss, while Standard of New Jersey 5s were off ⅝.

Argentine Government issues held firm to stronger in the dull and irregular foreign group and Peruvian bonds also moved up. It was announced that a group of New York bankers had extended short term credits of about $3,000,000 to that republic, the money to be used for public works.

"KNOWLEDGE IS POWER"

A fact frequently repeated and more significant every day! The untrained man or woman has little chance in today's world of efficiency and intensive competition. Business houses have little time to train their employes—they want to hire people who are competent to do the job on their first day of employment. The person who wishes to get, and keep, a desirable position must fit himself for it first! Schools advertising under the heading of "Instruction" on this page today offer a practical and economical opportunity to secure the necessary "knowledge!"

INVESTMENT TRUST RAISES LOAN TOTAL

Huge Advances Are Laid to Heavy Payments Made to New Stock Companies.

BANKS PLAN ADVERTISING

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The record advance of brokers' loans, beclouding Wall street and unsteadying stocks, is regarded generally in local financial circles as the result of heavy payments being made at this time to many new investment trusts.

A rise was expected because of a continued irregular market, but that it would reach $120,000,000 after three successive rises in the $130,000,000 class, was not generally regarded as probable.

The issues demanding the aforestated large payments, it is explained, are not carried in marginal accounts to a large degree, payment for them being made direct. Therefore numerous purchasers of these trust issues have to draw money from their brokers' deposits when such can be arranged; increasing debit balances and

Plans for the proposed cooperative advertising campaign of the District of Columbia Bankers Association for the present administrative year were completed yesterday by the association's advertising committee and will be submitted to the association for approval, rejection or postponement at a special meeting next Friday morning.

As outlined, the plan covers six months beginning in December and including the usual Christmas Savings Club campaign. The latter has been a feature of the association's work for the last five years during which time the aggregate Christmas savings have increased from $2,400,000 to over $8,000,000. The present plan contemplates the use of all daily newspapers as well as a weekly program over a local broadcasting station entitled "Dollars and Sense."

In addition, it is proposed to conduct an essay contest each month which will be open to the public and for which cash prizes will be offered for the three best papers on the topic selected for the month. The committee is also preparing literature for distribution by local banks in response to requests received from the radio audience.

According to outlined plans the committee expects to have a number of prominent local bankers and Government officials before the microphone during the campaign and it will be its aim to make banking plain and enable the public to realize the varied and valuable services which banks are able to render their customers. Entertainment features of the program are receiving great attention so they may be of the highest character.

Reports regarding a somewhat similar campaign conducted by the Massachusetts Bankers Association and by the National Bank of Commerce of Detroit have shown the great public interest in matters relating to bank service and it is believed that the proposed informative campaign here will prove most interesting and helpful to local people.

Features in Day's Trading.

Three features made yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange interesting. They were the continued rise of Riggs National Bank stock, the largest single bond sale in five months, and a 188-share transfer of Potomac Electric Power preferred at fractional reactions from 106¾.

Riggs Bank advanced another point and to the sixth record high in six consecutive sessions, a single share changing hands at 621, and $10 000 Washington Gas A bonds sold at 102, a half-point gain.

Washington Savings Bank, in the unlisted department, came out, 100 shares selling at 16, a point above bid. In this department, 10 shares of Chris Heurich Brewery Co. sold at 25, that being its bid, and 50 the price asked. Washington Gas Light rose 2½ points 10 shares moving at 131½.

The unusually heavy bond sale sent the turnover aggregate to $11,000, highest for the week, and a $3,200 improvement over the preceding session. Likewise, the activity in Washington Savings Bank and Potomac Electric augmented the stock turnover to 390 shares, which bettered Thursday's sales by 52.

Probyn & Co. Move Offices.

Probyn & Co., correspondents of W. E. Willard & Co., Inc., of New York, have moved from the Evans Building to 1110 Investment Building. J. Edgar Probyn has returned from a sales conference of W. E. Willard & Co., Inc., branch office executives in New York.

The company announces acquisition of the First Illinois Co. of Delaware, with offices in Chicago, Aurora and Elgin, Ill., of which W. E. Willard is the new president. Fifteen additional offices are being opened, including Philadelphia and St Louis. Because of the rapidly developing program of expansion, Willard & Co. have taken the entire twenty-first floor at 25 West Forty-third street, New York, more than tripling their floor space. Washington friends of Probyn & Co. will be pleased to learn of this remarkable growth.

Railroad Operating Income.

Class 1 railroads for the first seven months of this year had a net railway operating income of $685,508,192, which was at the annual rate of return of 5.57 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics and made public yesterday. In the first seven months of 1928 their net railway operating income was $557,646,004, or 4.60 per cent on their property investment.

Class 1 railroads on August 31 had 158,112 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced yesterday. This was a decrease of 15,442 cars, compared with August 23, at which time there were 173,554 cars.

Chapter to Meet Wednesday.

The open meeting of the educational year of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, will be held Wednesday evening in the small ballroom of the Willard Hotel. Certificates will be presented to students completing last year's courses, and prizes will be awarded the three students having the highest averages. The ceremonies will be followed by dancing.

The body of Mrs. Anderson was brought to the Alexandria Hospital, where life was pronounced extinct, and it was removed to a local undertaking establishment.

Of the others who were injured, William Anderson, son of the dead woman, who was driving one of the cars, was able to leave the hospital yesterday, but Bernard Freeman, of Rosemont, driver of the other car; Wilson Creel, of Annandale, and Robert Newby, of Seminary Hill, passengers in Freeman's car, are still under treatment at the hospital. He was located here about two years ago for a short time and made many friends among the members of the congregation. He succeeds the Rev. Martin J. Quinn, who left last night for his new post as pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Ocean View, Va.

The funeral of William C. Robinson, who was killed in an automobile accident Wednesday night, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of his parents, 124 North Pitt street, services being conducted by the Rev. W. The work done through extension will carry with it full credit of both the State Teachers College and the university and the credit is the same as if these courses were taken in residence at either institution.

Police Seize Huge Still and Two Men

Operators of Liquor Device Escape; Liquor Found in Woods.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 13.—One of the largest stills caught in operation in Albemarle County recently was captured by a raiding party last night about 2 miles up the James River from Scottsville. James Lane and Charles Mowbray were arrested at the still. Two other men, who, officials say, were running the still, escaped. Their identities are not known.

The raiding party was composed of Charles Smith, J. A. Smith, J. Warren Davis, E. M. Powell and Sergt. Jennings, of the Scottsville police. Working on a tip, the party split to comb the woods. J. A. Smith, Charles Smith and Powell first sighted the big plant in full operation. At the approach of the officers, two of the operators ran. Powell gave chase to one who plunged in Totier Creek. The officer followed his quarry into the water, but was unable to make a capture.

The other man who escaped went up the creek and eluded his pursuers in dense underbrush and woods. Seven barrels of mash and a half gallon of whisky were found at the still.

Lane and Mowbray will be given a hearing tomorrow before Magistrates W. B. Colthurst and Jackson Beale, at Scottsville.

CHAMBER INVITES BALTIMORE MAYOR

W. F. Broening to Deliver an Address at Rock Hall September 19.

J. H. ANDERSON SPEAKER

Special to The Washington Post.

Rock Hall, Md., Sept. 13.—Mayor William F. Broening of Baltimore will be invited to deliver the principal address before the fifth semiannual dinner and meeting of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce, to be held in the parish house of Wesley Chapel here the night of September 19, according to Mrs. Nell C. Westcott, executive secretary.

Mayor Broening will also be asked to expand his recently announced proposal to have the city appropriate funds in support of the proposed Chesapeake Bay bridge which is now said to lack financial backing. Since the Kent commerce body is one of the original sponsors of the ten-mile span it is making every effort, according to the secretary, to bring support to the project and prevent its failure. Since Mayor Broening has proposed that the city and State defray the expenses of the bridge, amounting to over $10,000,000, and thus save the span and at the same time aid in developing the Port of Baltimore, local commerce officials, with headquarters in Chestertown, will tell the mayor that thousands of dollars in products and wholesale and retail trade will go to Baltimore, that is now being diverted to northern markets, if the bridge is erected.

His presence at the gathering would bring the discussion to the attention of Eastern Shore citizens generally, it is believed. The mayor has been in Kent three times recently as the guest of friends. J. Hall Anderson of Dover, graduate of Washington College in Chestertown, and former lieutenant governor of Delaware, has accepted an invitation to speak at the dinner. Music will be furnished by the Washington College Orchestra led by Dr. Fred G. Livingood.

It is the custom of the Chamber of Commerce to hold its semiannual functions in different parts of the county, in addition to the Chestertown headquarters. Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, president of the college and head of the commerce group, will preside.

VIRGINIA'S CROP PROSPECTS WANE

Cotton and Apple Better During August, U. S. Says in Report.

LATE CORN IS IMPROVED

Richmond, Va., Sept. 13 (A.P.).—Dry weather resulted in prospects for most crops in Virginia to decline during August, Henry M. Taylor, Federal-State agricultural statistician, reports.

A slight improvement was reported for cotton and apples, while local rains since the 1st of September caused some improvement in the dry sections, though the season was too much advanced for crops to show much recovery.

Late corn has been improved by local showers since the first of the month. The August 1st condition of 73 per cent indicates a production of 36,810,000 bushels, compared with 44,715,000 bushels last year and 43,704,000 bushels the average for the previous five years. The September condition of 67.9 per cent of normal throughout the United States indicates a production of 2,455,977,000 bushels, which is nearly 11 per cent below the forecast of August 1 and 13 per cent below last year's crop of 2,835,678,000 bushels.

Tobacco About Same.

The tobacco forecast shows little change from last month, but prospects for some types have improved while others have declined. The flue-cured crop is expected to be about 90,000,000 pounds, compared with 73,437,000 pounds last year. Estimates of total loss from hailstorms range from two to three million pounds. Weather conditions were more favorable in the Burley section, and the crop improved somewhat. The production is expected to be about 6,000,000 pounds compared with 4,500,000 pounds produced last year.

Peanut prospects indicate about an average yield this year. The early season was too wet and in some sections there was not sufficient rainfall during August. The Virginia crop is forecast to be 145,120,000 pounds, compared with 136,620,000 pounds last year. The total production of peanuts in Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee which grow mostly the large type nuts, is expected to be 377,456,000 pounds, compared with last year's crop of 337,970,000 pounds. While the average to be harvested in the sections producing the Spanish type peanuts is larger than last year, weather conditions have been unfavorable and the production this year is expected to be about the same as last year's crop of 407,000,000 pounds.

Late Hay Declines.

Late hay crops will be much less than usual. Early hay crops were unusually good in all sections of the State, especially in the Southwest. The total production, while slightly less than last year, will be considerably above the average.

The condition of pastures declined in all parts of the State, but in the Southwest grazing was still better than usual and cattle were reported to be in good condition.

The production of clover seed will be considerably above the short crop produced last year and in the Shenandoah Valley. The crop is unusually good.

Hot dry weather has retarded the growth of late potatoes and the crop is not expecetd to yield well. Total production of both early and late potatoes is estimated to be 16,266,000 bushels compared with 21,593,000 bushels last year and 15,118,000 bushels the average for the previous five years. Prospect for potatoes throughout the United States was reduced considerably by drought in August, and the September forecast of 349,112,000 bushels is 23,700,000 bushels or about 6 per cent, below the August report.

Sweet Potatoes.

The condition of sweet potatoes declined during August as a result of the hot, dry weather. The September forecast of 5,205,000 bushels is much less than last year's crop of 6,336,000 bushels, but was larger than the average production of 4,931,000 bushels for the previous five years. Sweet potato prospects in the United States declined during August as a result of the dry weather in a number of the most important States. The outlook is unfavorable in the important shipping sections of Virginia, New Jersey and Tennessee. The September forecast of production is 75,198,000 bushels, compared with 77,661,000 bushels harvested last year and 78,045,000 bushels, the average production for the previous five years.

The oat crop did not yield as well as usual, due to injury from rust and unfavorable weather conditions. The barley crop turned out fairly well, but the yield was not as large as last year. Buckwheat prospects declined, due to the dry weather.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE ADDS TO ITS STAFF

Two Chemistry Instructors to Join Institution at Annapolis.

SCHOOL TO OPEN SOON

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 13.—Dean Robert E. Bacon, of St. John's College, today announced two additions to the faculty for the coming term. The instructors, who will be assigned to the chemistry department, are Profs. Paul Allen, jr., Woodberry, N. J., and George H. McFarlin, Chicago.

Dean Bacon believes that the smaller college particularly needs men trained in the wider special fields if it is to achieve a liberal interpretation of the arts and sciences.

Only by subjecting youths to the broadest possible cultural interests can one realize his full potential values, he maintains.

Prof. Allen was graduated from Harvard in 1919 and received his A. M. degree in 1922 and Ph. D. in 1924, both from the Cambridge institution. In 1923 he became an instructor in chemistry at the New York University, but more recently he has been research chemist in the industrial field.

Prof. McFarlin received his A. B. degree from Indiana University in 1925 and his A. M. from the same institution three years later. He comes to St. John's from the University of Chicago, where he has been for the last two years.

Dr. Herman Bernhard, native of Leningrad, U. S. S. R., is head of the St. John's chemistry department.

FIRST LEGAL CHIEF OF U. S. HONORED

Memorial Over the Grave of Edmund Randolph Is Unveiled.

SERVED WASHINGTON

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 13.—Members of the Masonic fraternity of Virginia and nearby States today paid tribute to the memory of Edmund Randolph, one time grand master of the Grand Lodge of Virginia and first Attorney General of the United States, at the dedication of a memorial erected over his grave in the cemetery at Old Chapel, near Millwood, Clarke County. It was the 126th anniversary of his death.

Outstanding characteristics and achievements of his life and career were delineated by several of a notable gathering, including United States Senator Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana; Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, and Charles A. Callahan, Alexandria, past grand master of Virginia. The memorial was unveiled by Edmund Randolph Williams, 8-year-old son of Dr. Ennion G. Williams, State health commissioner, and a descendant of Randolph.

Wreath Placed on Grave.

A floral wreath was placed on the grave by Mrs. Granville Valentine, of Richmond, in the name of the Society of Colonial Dames of America in the State of Virginia, of which she is president. Another wreath was laid on the grave by Miss Rose MacDonald, Berryville, regent, and Mrs. Frank B. Crawford, Winchester, representing the Fort Loudon Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. A prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Thomas W. Hooper, Richmond, Masonic grand chaplain. Benediction was by the Rev. Dr. F. T. McFaden, deputy grand master. John T. Cochran, of The Plains, presided as worshipful grand master. The Grand Lodge of Virginia convened in special communication in the hall of Treadwell Lodge at Berryville and proceeded in a body to Old Chapel for the ceremonies early this afternoon.

Thousands Are Present.

Unveiling and dedication of the memorial drew several thousand Masons and connections of the Randolph family from many parts of Virginia and States within a few hours' travel, and roads in the vicinity of the historic old Episcopal church near Millwood were choked with traffic. Funds for the tomb were contributed by the Grand Lodge of Virginia and a number of subordinate lodges. The memorial, made of Vermont granite, is the largest tombstone in the cemetery, and is of rather unique design. The marble stone which stood at Randolph's grave for half a century has been preserved by embedding it in bas-relief at the top of the stone and covering it with heavy plate glass held by cement and screws. The lower half of the stone was reserved for a simple inscription, reading:

EDMUND RANDOLPH,
Born Tazewell Hall,
Williamsburg, Virginia,
August 10, 1753.
Died Carter Hall,
Near Millwood, Virginia,
September 13, 1813.

A bronze tablet at the base of the memorial records that the memorial was "erected by Grand Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Virginia, and several subordinate lodges, 1929." Another bronze tablet, placed on the grave in front of the memorial, recites positions of distinction filled by Randolph, as follows:

Aide de camp to Washington, 1775.
First attorney general of Virginia, 1776.
Member of Continental Congress, 1779.
Governor of Virginia, 1786.
Grand master of Masons in Virginia, 1786.
Member of Constitutional Convention, 1787.
First Attorney General of United States, 1789.
Secretary of State of United States, 1794.

The grave of Randolph, covered with myrtle, is surrounded by the graves of other members of the family that has been one of the most distinguished of Virginia for many generations.

Died on Visit.

Randolph died while on a visit to his friend, Col. Nathaniel Burwell, at Carter Hall, near Millwood, and his funeral was conducted by Bishop William Meade from the oldest Episcopal church west of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The old cemetery contains the graves of representatives of such well-known Virginia families as those of Burwell, Nelson, Carter, Page, Byrd, Harrison, Meade, Cooke and many others.

Randolph's life was an eventful one. In his youth he was disinherited by his father, John Randolph, for refusing to remain loyal to the British crown during the Revolution, but he was adopted by his uncle, Peyton Randolph, whose estate he inherited. He became one of the leading members of the bar in Virginia and filled with distinction many eminent places in the State and Federal service. His uncle, Peyton Randolph, was president of the first American Congress.

Aid to Washington.

As a member of the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia he introduced the Virginia plan, which later became the major part of the finished Constitution. Washington chose him for Attorney General in 1789, and he succeeded Jefferson as Secretary of State.

It was while Randolph was serving as head of the Department of State that the letter was written by him to the Frenchman, Fauchet, which persuaded Washington to ask for his resignation on the grounds of possible disloyalty to the American Government. Randolph penned a "vindication," in which he set forth that he had not received a penny from the French government. There are said to be many today who believe the whole affair was a "frame-up" on Randolph.

After his retirement from the Federal service Randolph resumed the practice of law. One of the most celebrated of his many noted cases was that of defending Aaron Burr in his treason trial at Richmond, which was won by Randolph.
